There were 35 buyers and 69 consignors represented at Thursday's market. MARKET TREND: The market was active on all classes with prices strong due to the large demand. Steers were up to $3 and $4 higher with heifers $2 stronger. Cows were still off with dressed meat prices down also. We had plenty of buyers on hand and the good kind of cattle to send home with them. NEXT SALE: Thursday, September 2nd. Several large lots of good feeder cattle are consigned for this sale including one 300 head consignment, a few 150 head consignments, and several smaller lots. There is still time to get your cattle consigned and this should be a good market while the demand is still strong.

Thank you, John B. Kirby

HHS Drama Club to sponsor Oregon Mime Theatre Sept. 9

"Mime is an art form that performs itself in silence, and a lot of its communicative powers lie in the eyes. Mime is neither theater nor dance," says Francisco Reynder, founder-director of the Oregon Mime Theater here for a solo performance at 8 p.m. on Thursday, September 9 in the Heppner High School cafeteria. Mr. Reynder, nationally recognized as one of the preeminent mime artists in the United States, has performed for several years in France, Holland, Belgium and England before coming here, to give solo performances at over 450 colleges and universities in the U.S. and Canada. He is currently associated with Lewis and Clark College.

Because the mime artist establishes communication through the eyes and body, most mimes use a white face. "I use it, too, with black eyes and a black mouth," says Reynder. "It's like a piece of paper. Easy to read. The white takes away my individuality. My costume is black and white, too - and this results in a kind of negative image on stage. In that image, an audience can easily reflect a bit of himself in the mime." Reynder says that communication is possible between a mime and with people of all ages. "Mime is a kind of international nonverbal language - and a lot of its success is based on the fact that every human being has been a child once and can relate to nonverbal communication. Before you learn any language as a child, you're a mime. You point. You learn.

Canadian youth arrives in Morrow County

By BIRDINE TULLIS
Morrow Co. Extension Service
A week on the Columbia River at Boardman with the Ernie Wade family completes the second half of an exchange program between 4-H members from Eastern Oregon counties and Canada for Richard Radley, Fort St. John, B.C.
Two Morrow county members, Angie Evans and Ann McLaughlin, recently visited in Canada. Two Canadian members were scheduled to visit Morrow County, but one could not come due to illness. The visiting Canadian was one of the members selected from throughout British Columbia who were picked as exchangees at the B.C. Provincial 4-H Club Week, an event comparable to our Oregon Summer Week. In addition to the time spent with the Wade family, Radley will travel to the State Fair with Extension Agent Ken Killingsworth, the originator of the popular exchange.
