

Around About By Justine Weatherford

How good it was of the weather system to cooperate with the Pendleton Round-Up, except for wetting the Dressup Parade. Of course many from this county help with the week's activities, participate in the parades and shows and enjoy going to watch the daily contests.

How disturbing the heavy rains, damaging extra high water and the three-hour power outage were in this county on Sunday. Many of us were reminded again of how dependent we have become on electric power and how inconvenient we find living without it.

Among the many in Oregon who attended the Portland Zoo's Salute to Thailand and to Portland's Asian elephant aggregation were Snon Chindavit and Bouapheth Thongdy.

Snon has many friends in Heppner now and has been most helpful to the Laotian refugees here. He and his American wife, Joan, their three sons and Bouapheth left the Chindavit home in Walla Walla, Wash. at 4 a.m. in order to be at the zoo before 11 a.m. on Sunday. They returned Bouapheth to Heppner Sunday night through the heavy waters along lower Willow Creek.

Snon began working with the District Army Corps of Engineers in Walla Walla on Monday morning. He will be missed here, especially by the Thongdys, who have been delighted to have a friend from southeast Asia here during the summer.

Next weekend is loaded with activity. On Saturday, Sept. 25, the garden clubs of Northeastern Oregon will hold their Fall District Meeting at St. Patrick's Catholic Church Parish Hall, an event scheduled last spring, which should bring about 100 persons together. Preparations for this event and for the other happenings scheduled for Saturday have taken considerable time and efforts of many persons.

The Heppner Soroptimists have scheduled their annual rummage sale for the same day out at the fairgrounds and the Neighborhood Center is having a bake and rummage sale on Friday and Saturday. Two special parties have been announced for Saturday afternoon, the 90th birthday party for Margaret Healy being given by her children at the Bill Gentry home in Heppner, and the Art Dalzell golden wedding celebration in Condon. The Arlington community's annual auction and beef barbecue is also set for Saturday.

This Sunday the annual meeting of the Morrow County Historical Society will begin with a potluck dinner at the Lexington Grange Hall at 1 p.m. This year's meeting will have several special features. Folks are asked to bring along either salads or desserts and money or checks to cover their year's dues to the Oregon State Historical Society and to the county society.

One reason the coming weekend is so filled with activities is that it comes as the Round-Up is concluding and before the big rush of hunting begins. Some folks are thinking that if everyone knew about community activities that are scheduled ahead, that knowledge could be helpful in keeping too many events from being bunched together on the same day.

The Bank of Eastern Oregon keeps a big scheduling calendar just inside its inner entrance door. The bank has already positioned a large 1983 calendar there, right under the remaining months of this year. If organizations could get in the habit of writing in the dates there for scheduled events ahead of time — maybe right after the date is set — the use of this community calendar might be a real help to everyone.

Last week the Heppner Garden Club chose the final Yard of the Month for 1982. Those responsible for recommending the monthly selections have really tried to keep checking on the many nice yards around town. They, like the Garden Club members at Ione, have not ever chosen to honor the yard of a club member, although some members' yards are outstanding. Several worthy yards are not named this growing season, but they will surely be watched next year.

On Monday, Sept. 13, at 8 p.m. at the fairgrounds, 25 persons attended the first meeting of the Morrow County Fair board since the fair. Board Chairman Ron Currin did an excellent job presiding. The superintendents of various departments and others attending offered a few suggestions for making the fair even better next year. The chairman said it was pleasing "to have this largest attendance ever" and thanked all who helped with the fair and who were indicating their continuing interest.

Last Thursday, I happened to meet Cindi Lawson who came to Heppner two years ago from Philomath. She is the new Homemaker Helper for south Morrow. That really helpful program has been so great in making it possible for elderly, ill or injured persons to stay in their homes. Gladys Jewell has been a great Homemaker Helper here until health problems forced her to retire.

How most of us love warm fall days and dread that big killing freeze which will wipe out all the flowers and tender vegetables. We hope this freeze will please hold off quite awhile, at least through this next heavily scheduled weekend.

Church school program to begin at All Saints'

This Sunday, September 26, All Saints' Episcopal Church in Heppner will begin its church school programs, announced the Rev. Ed Watts, vicar. There will also be a Dedication Service for the new altar missal.

A nursery service will be provided for children through age three and one-half, while pre-school instruction will be given to children from age three and one-half to five years. Elementary education classes will be conducted for children up to age seven. Other ages will be included in programs as teachers become available, said Watts.

On Thursday, Sept. 30, at 7 p.m., an Adult Enquirer's

Class will begin for those who wish to learn more about the church and for those who wish to prepare for confirmation. The class will address such questions as: Did Henry the VIII start the Episcopal-Anglican Church? Is the Episcopal-Anglican Church Protestant? and many other thought provoking questions, explained Watts.

Junior-senior high confirmation classes will begin on Sept. 30, at 12:30 p.m., following the Sunday service. The classes will be held three Sundays per month. On the remaining Sundays, acolyte training will be given to those students and others interested in helping with services.

Heppner family has Calif. visitors

Two visitors from Placerville, California stopped by in their motor home to visit Joanna Bown in Heppner last Sunday, Sept. 19.

Joanna is an AFS student from South Africa who is staying with Larry and Mary Ann Cerullo.

Visiting the Heppner family were John and Mo Rudolf who dropped by for Sunday dinner and also spent the night. Mo, originally from South Africa, is a close friend of Joanna's mother.

The Rudolfs are currently touring the U.S. before flying to Europe to visit Mo's family in England and South Africa.

Lexington news

Delpha Jones 989-8189

The citizens of Lexington were quite busy Monday morning cleaning up the debris from the heavy rain storm that passed through the area on Sunday. Lexington Lumber Yard had much water and mud in its' building, and it is reported that some basements had a bit of water. The Willow Creek channel ran over its' banks near the Jones and Geneva Palmer ranches. The highway near mile post 31 was closed for a short time until the highway department, which was busy cleaning in another area could arrive. Some cars had to wait for their engines to dry out before going on their way. Most saw the humor in the situation, as this is rumored to be a very dry area, "except when it rains." Much of the damage came from the heavy flow in Clarks and Blackhorse Canyons and the smaller canyons draining into the highway area.

The Three Links Club of Holly Rebekah Lodge met at the home of Annetta Padberg on Thursday for a regular meeting. Plans were discussed for the flea market, food sale and bazaar to be held Oct. 16, starting at 9 a.m. Ladies are making homemade foods and articles for the bazaar of arts and crafts. Committees were appointed to work on the different projects. It was announced that the fall and winter card parties will start in November and will be held the first Saturday of each month thereafter. There will be cards, refreshments, and prizes for the same admission as last year, $1.50. Initiation will be held the first Thursday in October at the Lexington hall. Those present were Dorothy Burcham, Venice Hendrickson, Eula Bloodworth, Joyce Buchanan, Josie Peck, Kathy Tellechea, Leila Palmer, Luella Taylor and the hostess, Annetta Padberg.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Taylor have been Mr. Taylor's cousin, Mr. and Mrs. Buck Benton of Pateros, Wash. The cousins had not seen each other since they were small children.

Leila Palmer was a Portland visitor last week.

Kenneth Marshall spent several days last week as a patient in Pioneer Memorial Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Buchanan have returned home from Portland where he consulted a physician.

Doug Marquardt has been recuperating at his home after an appendectomy recently performed at a hospital in Pendleton.

The Committee on Women's Activities met at the home of Maureen Howard on Tuesday for a regular meeting. Plans were discussed concerning the supper at Booster Night and it was announced that the fall and winter card parties will start the third Saturday of November. There will be cards, refreshments and prizes and the public is invited to attend. The door prize was won by Marie Steagall. Lovely refreshments were served. The next meeting will be at the home of Charlene Papineau.

Lexington Grange met on Monday evening for a regular meeting. A potluck dinner was enjoyed, followed by the meeting. Morton Wolverton, Eastern Oregon State Grange deputy, a distinguished guest, was introduced. Mr. Wolverton told of some of the activities of the grange and of a recent regional meeting in California. He also said that the outstanding family latent group from Imnaha is planning to enter a national contest at Rhode Island and that the county of Wallowa is busy with activities to help defray this group's expenses. The announcement was made that plans have been completed for the Lexington Grange Booster Night. Scheduled speaker is Glennabelle Lewis, the newly elected state lecturer from Baker. Her husband is Pomona Master of Baker Co. Also musical numbers are planned, featuring the Sweet Adelines of Pendleton. The dinner will start at 6 p.m. with the grange furnishing the main dish. Others are asked to bring salads and desserts. Everyone is invited to attend. This promises to be a fun and interesting evening.

The building committee is busy with plans for some needed repair and remodeling work at the grange hall. Chairman of the project is Glover Peck. A couple of resolutions will be ready by the committee for the next meeting. A fun door prize was won by Frances Smouse.

Erda Pieper is recuperating at home after a stay at St. Anthony Hospital in Pendleton.

The Historical Society's annual meeting will be held Sunday at the Lexington Grange Hall. Turkey dinner is planned with the Society furnishing the main course and guests are asked to bring salads and desserts. There will be a display table of small antique items by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Peck, musical numbers, and an election of officers. A slide program is also planned and prizes will be awarded. Dues will be collected at this time.

It is hoped that there will be more copies of the book "Ione and Us" available for sale at this time, as well as the Morrow County Historical Society annual booklet.

Road Report

The Morrow County Public Works Department has released the following work report:

The weekend rain storm could possibly have caused as much as $40,000 in damages to our county roads. Asphalt, culverts, cattleguards, gravel and mud washes were just a few of the department's problems Monday morning. However, within a few hours all roads were passable if care was taken.

Roads resealed recently were: Clarks Canyon, Myers and D. Doherty-Baseline to Sandhollow Road.

Cold mix patching was done on Ella Road, Blackhorse Road, Sandhollow, Social Ridge, Ione Gooseberry, Upper Rhea Creek, and Basey Canyon Road and in the north end of the county on Kunze Road, Homestead, Irrigon Ordinance, S. Main-Kinkade, Irrigon-Eighth St., No. 906 and No. 777.
