

Cardinals lose hope for making it into playoffs

By CRAIG GUTIERREZ
The lone High School football team lost all hope of making the playoffs when they lost to Arlington last Friday at Arlington. Overall, lone didn't play too badly but Arlington had a very tough defense that held lone to only 77 total yards.

Craig Hams contributed 33 of the total yards and Howard Leavitt compiled 11 of the total. Denny Starr didn't have his usual good day throwing the ball as he threw four interceptions and only had 32 yards in offensive passing.

Starr scored first for the Cardinals, intercepting a Steve Bittenger pass and running it back for a 70 yard touchdown. The second touchdown came on a fumble recovery that ended with Tim Patton grabbing a pass from Starr in the endzone. Lone's defense gave up 284 yards rushing and 57 yards in the air. The score at half time was 6 - 16 Arlington, but Arlington's tough defense and persistent offense ended the game at 32 - 12 in Arlington's favor.

Coach Gordon Meyers said "we didn't do the normal things that we usually did in the past games, we didn't block and we didn't move the ball. We also didn't stop Arlington while they were moving the ball. We need to win the last two games and hope for a break."

Lone plays Wheeler at home Friday night, Oct. 22, at 7:30 p.m.

Heppner pulls out win in final seconds of game

By GLENN SMITH

Last Friday, Oct. 15, Heppner was the site of a homecoming football game between the Lyle, Wash. Trojans and the Heppner Mustangs. The game was a close one right to the last few seconds.

But when the clock ran out, it was Heppner that was victorious, 20 - 14. In the beginning of the game, neither team could seem to get it right, and the first quarter ended with both teams scoreless.

In the second quarter, Lyle broke away to score a touchdown and a two point conversion. The Mustangs rallied and scored a touchdown, but failed to get the extra point. With just minutes left in the second quarter, the Mustang defense pushed the Trojans back and scored two points on a safety.

Halftime came and the score was tied, 8 - 8. Heppner soloed in the third quarter in getting a touchdown, but Lyle came back to score in the fourth, tying the game once more, 14 - 14. The clock ran down and it looked more and more like a possible overtime. But with just 57 seconds left in the game, Jeff Orr (quarterback for the Mustangs) ran a punt back 70 yards to score again. Although the extra point failed, the Mustangs had enough of a lead to win the game.

Les Payne, coach for the Mustangs commented "Our special teams were the key in the game. Things like Orr's point return also helped a lot." Heppner will go on the road next Friday, Oct. 22, to play the Pilot Rock Rockets at 8 p.m.

Judi Ward was crowned Homecoming Queen in a halftime ceremony at Friday night's game. Other members of the court were Sarah Farrar, Anne Murray, Linda Englert and Carla Miles.

Mustang JVs drop one

By GLENN SMITH

Monday, Oct. 11, the Heppner Mustang J.V.s traveled to Athena to play the Weston-McEwen Tigerscotts for the second time this season. Unlike the first time the two teams played, when the Mustangs were victorious, the junior varsity team was defeated, 0 - 16.

Tim Birky, coach for the J.V. team, said "We just couldn't get things going. They played better than in our previous game and their defense kept our offense from scoring." The J.V. coach went on to say "Several times we had the chance to score but missed it. If we just could have scored and gotten things going, it would have been a different ballgame."

The Mustang J.V. team stayed home Monday, Oct. 18, to meet the Riverside Pirates.

couldn't control Heppner's and in turn, Heppner's quarterback, Joe Taylor, had an exceptional day.

HHS Club demonstrates spirit

Nine local kids, ranging in age from three to nine, have formed a club to support Heppner High School athletics. Called "The HHS Club," this unusual group has many different means of showing their spirit and support.

Members of the club are Scott Johnston, president, age nine; Bobby Krein, vice-president, also age nine; Rick and Brian Koffler, ages six and four; Amy and Sara Greenup, ages nine and six; Jason Stack, eight, all of Heppner; and Michael and Chris Jones, ages seven and three, of Lexington.

To celebrate Heppner High School's homecoming last Friday, the group collected pop bottles to earn money to make their own homecoming float and other decorations for their own Homecoming Parade. Theme of the parade was "Eat 'Em Up, Go Mustangs Go."

The Club's parade was held following the high school's parade, in the alley behind Gale Street in Heppner. About 20 people turned out to watch the active youngsters demonstrate their pride and spirit.

Meetings of the club are held at the clubhouse before games. The building is decorated with Mustang memorabilia; programs and other items they have found after games.

Their devotion to the Mustang football team this season has been honorable. On Saturdays after each home game, the club members go to the football field at the fairgrounds and clean up the sidelines and grandstand area. They also sport blue and gold at games and hold their own pep assemblies. Some members have T-shirts bearing the Mustang emblem.

President Johnston said that other kids are welcome to join the club, which has taken in about two new members per month. Those interested should contact him.

He needs one vote, Yours.

Robert F. 'Bob' Smith, one of the most skilled lawmakers to serve in the Oregon Legislature, can easily hit the ground running in Washington if elected to Congress in the 2nd District.

Smith, 51, a cattle rancher and businessman in Harney County, where he was born, is the minority leader in the Oregon Senate. He served two terms as speaker of the Oregon House. In Salem, he compiled a distinguished record of leadership, winning support from both parties. Clearly, he can quickly become a strong voice for his district in Washington. His knowledge and experience in dealing with many different legislative issues gives him a big advantage over the average freshman, including those in the majority party.

Smith's opponent is Larryann Willis, 35, a hard-charging liberal Democrat who has not held any public office, but who has risen rapidly in the past two years in the party apparatus to the post of Democratic National Executive Committee member. She has a lot of political magnetism, and last May easily defeated a former legislator, Al Densmore, and others in the Democratic primary. But there are few activities in her background to qualify her, either by experience or training, for dealing with complex problems in Washington, D.C.

Her arguments on major issues are more tuned for campaigning than for seeking solutions. For example: She would not erode Social Security pension benefits, which is the same position that Smith holds. But she insists Social Security has no funding problem, although experts in the field differ only on how the program should be reformed, not whether it is running in the red and thus threatening pension payments.

The Legislature is a marvelous training school, a place where many Oregonians have learned how to deal with state and local issues, gaining valuable tools to use in reducing government burdens. State Sen. Smith has been a conservative on most fiscal issues, but he is not a doctrinaire, one-issue candidate. He supports a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget. He opposes Reagan's record-deficit budget, arguing this could have been avoided without increasing taxes by trimming fat out of the military. He also supports a freeze on nuclear weapons development.

Smith's long experience in state affairs makes him an avid supporter of the administration's "new federalism" proposals to return some of the federal responsibilities to the states. He believes in many cases the states can do the job cheaper and better.

A hard campaign is being waged in an expanded 2nd District, which is the third largest congressional district in the United States and larger than 34 states. The 77,000-square-mile district has urban problems, cattle and wheat issues, lumber mill unemployment and needs for more tourist dollars. Its broad horizons contain most of the Oregon land mass, requiring vigilant management, development and care in how tax burdens are imposed.

Representing the district is a large order. It is not a post for on-the-job training. But even against a person of more experience, Bob Smith would deserve the support of voters because he is a highly competent, compassionate and tight-fisted legislator who has demonstrated the very qualities most Oregonians have long admired.
