

Forest Service seeks seasonal help

Applications for next year's summer and seasonal jobs with the Forest Service will be accepted until January 15, 1983, the Forest Service has announced.

Applicants may submit only one application nationwide to a Forest Serviced Regional Office or Research Station. Applicants must be at least 18 years old at the time they report for duty and must be capable of performing arduous work.

Jobs that will be available in the Pacific Northwest Region of the Forest Service (Oregon and Washington) are: Aids and technicians in forestry, range, recreation, fire control, engineering, surveying, and biological, physical, and hydrological sciences.

For other positions such as clerks, wage grade (laborers), rappellers, and smokejumpers, applicants should contact a National Forest or Research Station unit directly for information on when, where, and how to apply.

All applicants will be given equal consideration without regard to race, color, sex, creed, or national origin.

Education, work experience, and availability will determine an applicant's chance for employment.

Application forms (FS 6100-23) are available at all Forest Service offices and must be postmarked no later than January 15, 1983, to be considered.

County Museum grant denied

By JUSTINE WEATHERFORD

On Wednesday evening, Dec. 8, members of the board of directors of the Morrow County Museum assembled for their annual meeting at the museum.

Herman Green, a longtime board member, presided in the absence of Amanda Duvall, permanent board chairman. Board members present were Herman Green, Ken Smouse, Ida Farra, Rachel Harnett and Johanne Wood, according to board secretary Alma Green. Three board members who did not attend were Orville Cutsforth, Irene Swanson and Mrs. Duvall.

Under old business it was announced that a grant application for $5,000 for financial aid and support for the museum, which had been made by the county planning officer, had been turned down.

Ken Smouse inquired about the number of persons visiting the museum during 1982, and Johanne Wood, curator, announced that the number was up by nearly 1,000 over former years. She said that the largest single group of visitors were the various groups of school children who came most often during the late spring months.

The matter of the maintenance of the Democrat Guleh School, which sits in the City Park near the library-museum building, was discussed. The board directed Mrs. Wood to attend a city council meeting to clarify the responsibility for the upkeep of that pioneer one-room schoolhouse which was moved into the park as a bicentennial project and which has been operated as an annex of the museum.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, visiting and refreshments provided by Mrs. Wood were enjoyed by those present.

There have been several changes in the hours that the museum and the library are open to the public. Mrs. Wood says that presently the museum hours are from 1 to 5 p.m. on Saturday, Sunday, Monday, Wednesday and Thursday. The librarian states that the library hours are Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday from 1 to 5 p.m., Thursday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. (when the story hour is held), Thursday from 1 to 5 p.m. and Saturday from 2 to 4 p.m.

Livestock Growers hear representative's concerns

The Morrow County Livestock Growers met for an annual meeting last Friday at the Elks Lodge in Heppner. The group was addressed by State Representative Max Simpson, and heard several sales representatives' discussions. Also, a business meeting, three new directors were elected.

Simpson spoke on legislative issues, and told of his concern of the possibility of a liberal speaker in the House of Representatives. However, he said, the senate could be controlled by conservatives, benefitting the farmers, reported Wayne Evans, Morrow County Livestock Growers president.

Evans praised Simpson, saying he is a strong ally of the rancher. "We're lucky to have him."

At a short business meeting, Wayne Evans, Don Bennett and Eddie Brosnan were elected as directors for three year terms. New officers will be elected soon, Evans said.

Door prizes, donated by local merchants, were also awarded at the meeting.
