Lexington Grange met for a regular meeting on Monday evening with Men's Night. A pancake supper consisting of pancakes, ham, sausages and eggs was prepared and served by the men of the grange. This is always a delicious and fun supper. Following this, Fred Toombs, a member of the Heppner Economic Development Corporation, gave a most interesting talk on the purposes of the newly organized group. The plans are to interest small businesses into coming to this end of the county. Of course, he explained, larger business enterprises are also welcome. As he stated, it is really a south Morrow County group, but they have already incorporated under the name of Heppner. All those interested in joining may contact a member. Memberships are available for a one time assessment.

A couple of readings were heard, one entitled "Going to Grandpa's House," and another on giving of yourself with a friendly smile and cheerful Hello. Both were enjoyed by those present.

The master thanked Glover Peck, Cecil Jones and Charles Buchanan for the work they have been doing at the hall, such as insulating, painting and lowering the ceiling in back of the stage.

Honored guests were: Doris Reid, the C.W.A. chairman of District No. 6, and her husband, P. Reid, who is the newly appointed Umatilla County deputy. The masters of Greenfield Grange, and Martha Baker and Nathan Thorpe of Columbia Grange were recognized, as were the following guests: Margaret Thorper, Grady and Myra Banks, Donald Baker, Dot and Lewis Halvorsen of Willows Grange, Ethel Studi of Stanfield and Faye Wells of Columbia.

Jean Nelson told of the fine Ag exposition that she and Norman attended in Spokane, Wash. There were two resolutions adopted from Lexington Grange, and one read for reference that will be presented at Pomona. The next C.W.A. meeting is scheduled at the home of Frances Smouse.

There are several entering the sewing contests and it is hoped to get more interest in these contests of both the lecturer and C.W.A. A committee was appointed to raise money for the expenses of the National Grange, which is coming to Oregon in 1985. The master reminded all that Pomona Grange will meet at 10:30 a.m. at Greenfield Hall in Boardman. The speaker will be Bill Yeager, a member of the U.S. Wheat Commission from Condon.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Papineau and son Dennis visited with Orville Cutsforth at The Dalles General Hospital on Saturday.

Charma Marquardt visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill B. Marquardt, from her home in Portland over the weekend.

A surprise birthday party was enjoyed by Stuart Dick at the Lexington Christian Church. After the morning services, a lovely potluck dinner was served and at this time he received many useful and fine gifts. Later in the afternoon, a goodie shower was given for the Dicks, who are living in the parsonage. Most of the gifts were canned goods and other foods. A really fun time was enjoyed during the day by everyone.

The young people of the church recently enjoyed a roller skating party at the school gym with about 50 present, including the children and parents. A really good time was enjoyed by all. If the weather will cooperate, the group hopes to have a sledding party in the mountains.

Dorothy Burcham, Josie Peck, Delpha Jones and Ruth McCabe motored to Hermiston last week and attended the graveside services for Mabel Gray, a former Lexington resident. They also visited Florence McMillan at the Good Samaritan Center there.

Mike Burcham of Condon visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Burcham, on Sunday.

The Bridge club met at the home of Suzanne Jepsen for a regular meeting. Those playing were Lota Tibbles, Pat Lankford, Juanita Carmichael, Eileen Padberg, Daisy Collins, Beverly Wilson, Lois Hunt and the hostess. Prizes were: first high Tibbles, second high Collins, and third high Hunt with a consolation prize going to Lankford.

Phyllis Piper, Janette Skow, Eikleen Padberg, Ronda Britt and Carol Baker motored to Antelope to visit nearby Rajneeshpuram. The group reported a most interesting day. They drove over through Condon and Fossil and returned by way of Shaniko and Arlington.

The Lexington Pinochle Club met at the home of Hilda Yocom on Wednesday evening. Those present were: Eileen Padberg, Vonne Lovgren, Maureen Howard, Betty Mills, Martha Munkers, Bebe Munkers and the hostess, Hilda Yocom. Another player was a house guest of Bebe Munkers, a sister, Billie Walker, from California. Refreshments were served and prizes were won by Padberg for high, Yocom for low, with Lovgren and Howard traveling.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Doherty of Hermiston were overnight house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Jepsen.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Peck spent Saturday in Walla Walla, Wash. making the acquaintance of a new granddaughter, Jackie Louise, born Friday evening, to Mr. and Mrs. Randy Thurmond of Pilot Rock. Mrs. Thurmond is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peck. Other grandparents are great-grandmother Dolly Allstott of McNary, Mr. and Mrs. Glover Peck of Lexington and Jeanette Thurmond of Hermiston. The young miss tipped the scales at 5 lbs. and joins one brother, Ryan at home.

Mr. and Mrs. C.C. Jones visited O.W. Cutsforth at The Dalles General Hospital on Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cutsforth of Davenport, Wash. were also visiting Mr. Cutsforth, Kenneth's father. Following the visit, the Joneses joined Mrs. Cutsforth, Minerva Denslinger, Mr. and Mrs. Connors and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cutsforth for dinner at a restaurant.

Mr. and Mrs. G.E. Irvin were Lexington business callers on Monday of last week.

4-H leaders plan meetings

By BIRDINE TULLIS
Morrow Co. Extension Service

New officers of the South Morrow 4-H Council encourage all leaders to mark a big X on the first Monday each month, and plan to save that date for regular meetings of the council.

Jean Brazell, president, invites all south Morrow leaders to attend the meetings, present their ideas of activities and programs that could be carried out by the leaders' group to complement the ongoing 4-H program in the county. The next meeting will be February 7, 7 p.m. at the extension conference room, Heppner.

Ione Jr. high boys lose first to Condon

By ASHLEY CONKLIN

Ione's junior high boys lost for the first time this season as they were defeated 42-31 by the Condon Blue Devils on Thursday, Jan. 20. Ione is now 5-1.

The Cardinals were plagued by costly turnovers throughout the game and were unable to get their offense into high gear.

Condon opened the game by taking an 11 to 6 lead over the Cards in the first quarter. The Devils again outscored Ione by five points as Condon's halftime lead was 23-13.

Ione's problems continued in the third stanza while the Devils increased their lead to 36-18. In the fourth period, the Cardinals scored 13 while Condon had six, and the Devils won 42 to 31.

Again Ione had their difficulties at the foul line, hitting on five of 16 shots for 31.3 percent. Condon made eight out of 11 for 72.7 percent.

The Cards were led in scoring by Ashley Conklin and Mike Rietmann who provided eight and seven points respectively.

Ione will travel to Umatilla on Monday, Jan. 31, for a battle with the Vikings.
