Plans for Chamber of Commerce Banquet are well underway

By JUSTINE WEATHERFORD

One of 1983's nicest community events promises to be the Annual Heppner-Morrow Chamber of Commerce First-Citizen Banquet at the Elks Lodge on Valentine's night, Feb. 14. The evening's speaker, Blue Mountain Community College President Ron Daniels will look into Morrow county's future. The social hour will begin at 6 p.m., dinner will be served at 7 p.m. New Chamber of Commerce President David Sykes will present his goals for the year; outstanding musical selections are scheduled; the program's top excitement will be the presentation by Dr. Wallace Wolff, Chairman of the Honors and Awards Committee, of the county's First Lady and First Gentleman of the year just past. Most merchants and professional people of the area are giving doorprizes and making other helpful contributions. Those contributing generously so far include: Peterson's Jewelry, Murray's Drug, Cole's Posy Patch, Western Heritage Federal Savings & Loan, Coast-to-Coast, Hutch's Printing Co. The Shoe Box, Far West Real Estate, The Heppner Gazette-Times, Kate's Kate Shop, Les Schwab Tires, Gardner's Men's Wear, Ron McDonald Chevrolet, Cal's ARCO Station, Farley Motor Co., Heppner Bowl, Morrow County Grain Growers, Central Market, Turner, Van Marter and Bryant, Ins., Ed Gonty's shop, Abrams & Kuhn Attorneys and Winter, Sweeney & Doherty Attorneys, First Interstate Bank, The Bank of Eastern Oregon and "The East Oregonian."

Banquet committee members, who feel that the arrangements, the menu and the program for this affair are outstanding, are: Doug Smith, the Rev. Ed Watts, Avon Melby, Mary Goheen and Justine Weatherford. The Honors and Awards Committee members assisting Dr. Wolff are Ray Boyce, Judge McElligot and Justine Weatherford. They are hoping for many indications from citizens that will help them determine the most worthy citizens of the community. Tickets for the banquet will go on sale on Thursday, Jan. 27, at Heppner Bowl, Peterson's Jewelry, the Elks Lodge and the Gazette-Times office, or from the Rev. Watts. They will cost $7.50 each if purchased in advance, and at the door, Feb. 14, they will be $8.

Is your's ready? History book stories are now coming in

By DELPHA JONES

Those who have not yet sent in their family history to the Morrow County Historical Society for the Morrow County History Book are asked to please try and get them ready. The stories that have come in are fine reading; some are written in a lighter vein, while others are more serious and to the point. Remember, these stories will be history, handed down to our children and grandchildren. Stories are needed so that those who read them can learn some of the history of the county, as it affected us, our parents and grandparents.

The society is also looking forward to receiving stories of the histories of churches, granges, lodges and businesses to print. Everything of interest, both past and present, is needed for the book. Those who are newcomers to the county are adding to the history of their city and the county, and their stories are also needed.

If a story will be sent in late, please contact Ruth McCabe in Lone or Delpha Jones in Lexington. Also, the Taylor Publishing Company must know if there will be a large enough market for the book before publishing. Those wanting to purchase a copy are asked to send their money to the society, or call and reserve a book, with the understanding that it will be paid for prior to the book's printing.

Those who plan to send photos of great value to the included in the book are asked to have a copy made so that the copy may be sent instead. By sending a copy of the photo, the owner eliminates the risk of having the original damaged or lost.

Anyone needing help writing a story may contact Mrs. McCabe or Mrs. Jones.

Over 250 attend church dedication service

Pastor Doug Thomas in the new Christian Life Center

Over 250 people attended the dedication of the new Christian Life Center building in Heppner last Sunday. Former ministers of the church, as well as ministers from other local churches attended and took part in the service.

Construction of the 7,000 square ft. geodesic dome began in the fall of 1981. A 2,400 square ft. addition is also planned and construction could possibly get underway this spring, said the Rev. Doug Thomas, pastor.

The dome houses a sanctuary, nursery, four classrooms, an office, a baptistry and restrooms. The planned addition will include main offices and restrooms, a fellowship hall and kitchen, Thomas said.

Seniors enjoy Mexican group's entertainment

By JUSTINE WEATHERFORD

The De La Cruz family and friends brought their assortment of musical instruments and amplifying equipment to Heppner last Wednesday and put on a terrific musical program for the diners at the Senior Citizen Mealsite.

Celso De La Cruz, the father of Eddie De La Cruz, the drummer, and of pretty Juanita De La Cruz, the interpreter and announcer, is the group's manager. Young Hector Oréllano helped with the technical equipment and also played the base. Roberto Lomas, a fine base player, also sang and especially pleased everyone with his playing of the group's electric organ.

Manuel Faray, another young man with triple talents, was featured on the accordion, on an electric guitar and as a vocalist. They have been playing at a cafe in Umatilla and are now being booked for weekend appearances in Kennewick, Wash. Several of them took time off from work and the youngest was released from school to come to perform here. Anna Mae Steagall explained. They gave more than an hour's show which was really exciting for those who were lucky to hear them.

Many listeners are hoping they will come to perform here again. Mrs. Steagall announces that the noon musical program she has arranged for the seniors on February 9 will present lone vocalist Wilma Cheney and Heppner pianist Ola Mae Groshens.
