

Former Heppner man joins Randall Co. of Portland

William Cox

William C. Cox, a former Heppner resident, has joined the Robert Randall Company of Portland as general counsel and vice-president for project development, announced Connie Shepro of the Randall Co.

The Randall Company is one of the Northwest's largest real estate developers. In his new position Cox will oversee the development of new projects, subdivisions and direct the planning process for new multi-family housing complexes, as well as act as the firm's general legal counsel. Cox was previously the senior member of the Oregon Land Use Board of Appeals (LUBA). In 1979 he left his private practice in Portland to accept Governor Atiyeh's appointment to the full-time position with L.U.B.A. The board is a quasi-judicial appellate body with jurisdiction over all land use decisions in Oregon, Shepro explains.

A Juris Doctor graduate of Lewis and Clark Law School in 1976, Cox received the Cornelius Honor Society Award for "Superior Scholarship, Leadership and Contribution to the Law School Community." He also holds the degrees of Master of Business Administration (1968) and Bachelor of Science (1967) from the University of Oregon.

Cox is a co-founder of the Leo Levenson Award for Superior Teaching at Lewis and Clark Law School. He serves on the Speakers Bureau of the Multnomah County Bar Association and the Administrative Law Committee of the Oregon State Bar. Cox is also a member of the Real Estate and Land Use and Business and Corporate sections of the Oregon State Bar.

An Oregon native, Cox was born in Heppner where his parents William L. and Winifred Cox still reside.

Applications available for Fair & Rodeo court

Applications are available for the 1984 Morrow County Fair and Rodeo Court by contacting chaperone Bobbie Angell at 676-9235. Candidates can also pick up a copy of the application form and rules at each high school in the county next week.

Applications must be turned into Angell by Friday, September 16. An interview will be held on September 22 with the candidates and their parents.

Court tryouts will be held on Sunday, September 25, at the fair appreciation dinner.

Citizen involvement lesson to be offered

"Can better citizenship be taught?" is a question the Oregon State Extension Service will answer with a "yes" this fall, announces Dawn Hawkins, OSU home economics extension agent.

A lesson to teach the how-to of getting involved in solving community problems is due to be released this fall called "One Step Away... From Being Involved," and is available to all Oregon counties and will be used by the Extension study groups in Morrow and Umatilla counties, he lesson introduces extension homemakers to public policy participation with a focus on family-related issues.

"The idea for it grew out of the Family Community Leadership activities," said Monine Stebbins, the Yamhill County home economist, who wrote the lesson with the assistance from Yamhill County F.C.L. volunteers. "The cooperation of volunteers and staff in writing the lesson is an example of the F.C.L. program's team work approach," said Greg Tillson, coordinator of the F.C.L. program in Oregon.

In the two-hour lesson, study group members learn and practice methods for influencing public policy. Personal anecdotes of the Northwest women who moved from being concerned to action are used as examples of effective citizenship and models for grassroots political involvement, Hawkins said.

The leader-training for study group leader teachers will be held Wednesday, September 7 at 1 p.m., at the Peace Lutheran Church in Pendleton, for this citizenship lesson. Debbie Ryan, Gibbon and Jeri McElligott, Ione will provide the leadership for this special project in the two-county area. Both attended a special training conference in May to provide the background for this project.

The study groups are organized under the umbrella of Oregon State Cooperative Extension Service. Most study group members in Morrow and Umatilla counties also belong to the Extension Homemakers Club but participation in the activity is open to the public, said Hawkins.

The Extension Homemaker Clubs are affiliated with the Extension Homemakers Council, which is co-sponsoring the Family Community Leadership Project in Oregon with the Extension Service. F.C.L.-Oregon is part of a regional leadership development program in six states in the northwest. Four pilot counties (Douglas, Yamhill, Wallowa and Washington) are participating in the first phase of the project.

The project is funded in part by a grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation.

For more information on the study groups and how to sign up for the free lesson, call the nearest county extension office.

Local news bits

Boyd Redding and his son, Kerry, of Los Angeles, Calif. were visitors this past week with Boyd's sister and her husband, Alena and Ervin Anderson of Heppner.

Visiting the Andersons over the weekend were their granddaughters, Lisa and Shelly Parent, along with Steve Karness, all of Lake Oswego.

Correction

A story appearing in last week's Gazette-Times concerning the Heppner Swim Team was in error.

Michelle Cameron did not participate in the district meet at Pendleton; however, Dawn Papineau did.

Prepare for the parade & home-made boat race

Harvest Festival plans are continuing to take shape. Several of the events will take some advance planning by participants. These are the homemade boat race and the parade.

The Parade will take place on Saturday and entry forms are available at the Boardman Pharmacy and Hardware. There will be prizes for the best entries.

The home-made boat race will occur on Sunday, September 11, at 11 a.m. The rules for the races are:

- 1.) The craft must be home-made, no factory allowed.
- 2.) The materials used to make the craft must be non-polluting, i.e. nothing that will leave oil in the water or bits and pieces floating in the water.
- 3.) The craft must be human propelled.
- 4.) All contestants must wear a U.S. Coast Guard approved life jacket.

5.) All decisions by the judges are final.

There will be four classes of competition. These will be:

1. Group construction - single crewman.
2. Group construction - multiple crewmen.
3. Individual construction - single crewman.
4. Junior competition - crewmen under 12 years of age, any of the above categories.

Lexington church to sponsor 4-day seminar

The Lexington Christian Church will be sponsoring a four-day seminar entitled "Learning to Love," beginning Sunday, September 11 at 11 a.m., announced the Rev. Stuart Dick, pastor. Evening sessions will be held at the church 7 p.m. on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Jon Ray, a traveling minister from California will be conducting the seminar, Dick said.

Everyone is invited to attend.

Club gets port up-date

Bob Miller of the Port of Morrow gave a brief run-down on port projects and activities to the Boardman Commercial Club at its August meeting last Thursday.

Some of the projects covered, included:
- the freeway east of Boardman should be opened to normal traffic by October 1. "That's coming right along and we're happy about that," Miller said. (A freeway interchange is being constructed for easier access to port property.)

- Construction of a grain terminal for S-K Farms is on schedule, with testing planned soon.

- A dock is under construction, and dredging is on-going in the area.

- port is asking for prices on a 2-million-gallon-water storage plant. The port's present system is handling two to two-and-one-half million gallons of water per day. "We have less than one hour of water storage (now) if there's a breakdown," Miller said in explaining the need for more storage.

Walkers for disarmament to visit Ione Sept. 7

A group of approximately 15 to 30 members of the Columbia River Walk for Disarmament will visit Ione September 7. The walkers, sponsored by the Northwest Action for Disarmament of Portland, will present a film and host a discussion following a potluck at the Ione United Church of Christ at 7 p.m.

Impetus for the walk comes from federal plans to restart Hanford-Purex, a plutonium factory in south east Washington, crucial to atomic weapons deployment. It has been inoperative since 1972.

The group will be happy to answer questions from the public, said a spokesperson and everyone is invited.

Why your phone bill is going down.

While local rates will rise, long distance rates should go down—for two reasons:

The good news.

First, because long distance rates will no longer subsidize local service to the extent they have in the past. (In fact, all subsidies from long distance will be eliminated by 1988.)

Second, because there will be more companies supplying long distance to select from.

As a result, long distance rates are expected to decline over time.

As this occurs, the FCC estimates those customers who make more than five 8-minute calls a month will actually save money on their monthly bills.

It's a bit complicated, we realize. And the courts and regulatory agencies are still working out many of the details. But one thing won't change:

Pacific Northwest Bell will continue to provide you with the superior telephone service you expect from us.

There's more news.

There are more changes coming. Some big, some small. But you can be sure we'll keep you informed every step of the way.

That's why we're offering a free 16-page booklet, "For Your Information," which explains the coming changes.

We've also set up a toll-free information number, 1 800 555-5000, you can call anytime.

We'll be here to answer your call—to talk, to listen, to help. After all, it's our business to keep you in touch.
