4-H is ready for the future

Beginning on a sound foundation of enthusiastic members and experienced leaders, the Morrow County 4-H Program is poised for the leap into the future. Steve Campbell and Birdine Tullis, extension agents, charged with administering the 4-H program in this county are excited about the prospects for the future. They are committed to making 4-H a fun and exciting educational experience.

An emphasis toward family involvement with a 4-H member's project is considered very important if the overall program is to continue to grow and prosper. It is noted, that while 4-H offers projects in agriculturally related areas, there is a big emphasis on creative arts, all aspects of home economics, computers, soil conservation, outdoorsman and related activities, photography, woodworking, and a host of others. In fact, guidelines are such that anyone with an idea for a project, which meets the general guidelines of being instructional and workable for a group, can contact either Mrs. Tullis or Mr. Campbell and they will be very happy to assist in implementing the program.

Community support appreciated

4-H is a community project and the support of community people and businesses is greatly appreciated. Without the support of the great people of Morrow County, the program could not function as it does. The staff at the extension office would like to take this opportunity to thank you, one and all, for the support you provide. It's your program and you deserve to be proud of it.
