

Soroptimist style show and wine tasting party well attended

Eric Thompson models for Gardner's Men's Wear at a Soroptimist sponsored style show and wine tasting party. The event was held last Saturday at the Heppner Elk's Lodge.

Joyce Hughes shows a dress from the Bridal Loft in Hermiston. Fashions from The LeBush Shoppe, the Shoe Box, Sears and Cole's House of Fashion were also seen. The models' jewelry was courtesy of Peterson's Jewelers, and Case Furniture took part with a fabric display.

U.S. Forest Service to recruit help

Applications for 1984 summer and seasonal employment with the Forest Service will only be accepted between December 1, and January 15, 1984, according to Neil B. Opsal, director of Personnel Management for the Pacific Northwest Region of the U.S.D.A. Forest Service.

Applicants may submit an application to only one Forest Service Regional Office nationwide. Applicants must be at least 18 years old at the time the report for duty and must be capable of performing arduous work, said a Forest Service spokesperson.

Generally, about 4,000 seasonal jobs are available in the Pacific Northwest Region of the Forest Service (Oregon and Washington) each year. These include aids and technicians in forestry, range, recreation, fire control, engineering and surveying, and pay from $5 to $6 per hour. The term of employment is usually less than three months. In 1983, 11,833 applications were received in the Pacific Northwest Region with 1,300 new hires selected and 3,000 required to fill positions. Education, work experience and availability determine an applicant's chance for employment, the spokesperson explained.

For other positions such as clerks, wage grade (laborers), and rappers, applicants should contact a National Forest office directly for information on when, where, and how to apply. Those interested in smoke-jumper positions in the Pacific Northwest Region must also apply to the Regional Office in Portland during this recruiting period. An SF-171 application form must be used instead of the seasonal application.

Newly-revised application forms (FS 6100-23, dated Oct.

1983) are available at all Service offices and must be postmarked no later than January 15, 1984, to be considered. These forms are applicable to any region. Last year's application forms will not be accepted.

All applicants will be given equal consideration without regard to race, color, sex, creed, or national origin.

Garden Club members view slides at meeting

Harold and Leveita Emerson of The Dalles showed slides of sagebrush and Alpine wildflowers to the members of the Lone Garden Club, reports a garden club spokesperson. The group gathered at the home of Pat Pettyjohn on November 9 with Ruth McCabe as co-hostess. Mr. Emerson said that he has shown these 200 slides at least 20 times recently.

During the business meeting names were drawn for a Christmas gift exchange. Herb and Mae Ekstrom were announced as October Garden of the Month award winners. No more gardens will be selected until next spring, the spokesperson said. Pat Pettyjohn, junior contests chairman, is contacting the school concerning entries in the Conservation Essay, Poster and Poem Contest sponsored by the Garden Clubs in the state.

Food items to be sold by swim team members

Heppner Swim Team members will be selling cheese, sausage sticks and solid chocolate Santa Clauses December 1, 2, and 3, door to door in the Heppner area. "The cheese and sausage would be great for holiday entertaining or gifts," said a team spokesperson. "and the Santas are nice stocking stuffers."

Money raised from the sale will be used for the team's 1984 swim season, the spokesperson said.

O.W.G.L. Convention to be held

"I wish I could tell every wheat farmer that we'll automatically sell every bushel of wheat we have for a good price," stated Bob Nixon, Junction City wheat farmer and president of the state-wide Oregon Wheat Growers League. Nixon was responding to a question about the highlights of the Oregon Wheat Growers League convention to be held November 27-30 at the Red Lion-Lloyd Center Motor Inn in Portland.

Other world countries geared up their production because the United States, the world's number one supplier of wheat, was going out of the market to the world's number one buyer of wheat, the Soviet Union.

"But," Nixon explained, "we're going into a market demand and supply situation that does not look good for the wheat farmer."
"I look right at the administration, past and present, for the situation that the wheat farmer is in today."
Embargos by the United States were blamed by Nixon as causing the large amount of world wheat on the market.

"Conventions give farmers an opportunity to learn about what the O.W.G.L. is doing to try to correct this situation," Nixon said.

"We were just about right for a supply-demand situation before the first embargo," he said. He went on to say that

Economics will be the main theme of the wheat growers convention, where speakers will pinpoint action farmers can take to help themselves at the local level—as well as on the world level.

Nixon said that Norma Paulus, Oregon's secretary of state, will keynote the convention and will point out how Oregon's economic development depends on agricultural trade and exports.

Another speaker, the Reagan Administration's spokesperson for the Foreign Agricultural Service, U.S.D.A. Deputy Undersecretary Richard Goldberg, will highlight programs that will effect exports of wheat as well as the administration's viewpoint on future activities.

Other items on the convention's activities will be workshops and committee meetings to help growers decide various other policies.

"It's a working convention," Nixon said. "Our economic times mean that we have to help ourselves out of this slump. We've been in them before and we've worked hard to get out—and I hope we do—and convention will help us work together."
