DID YOU KNOW?

Did you know it's impossible to sink in the chemical-rich waters of the Dead Sea? This picture of a happy floater isn't an optical illusion. The swimmer is floating while enjoying the daily newspaper. Here are some other facts about this interesting spot:

- The Dead Sea is a rich source of potash of which Israel harvests and exports, more than $25 million worth each year.
- Potash production is important to hungry Third World countries because of its usefulness as a fertilizer.
- The Dead Sea also contains vast amounts of bromine, magnesium and lithium, all processed and exported by Israel.

Fillies win 1st league game of season TigerScots explode for 80-45 victory over Mustangs

By DANAREID

The Heppner varsity Fillies traveled to Boardman Friday, Jan. 6 to play their first league game against the Riverside Pirettes.

Heppner received the tip-off and took the ball down the court to put it up for two points. The Fillies hustled back to play defense but they started out a little slow. However, by the end of the first quarter, the Fillies were ahead with a score of 11-4.

As the second quarter started, so did Heppner's defense. The Fillies were playing tough and forcing the Pirettes to take outside shots. Heppner did set up its offensive plays a couple of times and scored off them. At the end of the second quarter, the Fillies were still in the lead.

Heppner came out to play the second half of the game with confidence. The Fillies were really hustling Heppner was slow on the rebounds but were doing better than in the first and second quarters. The Fillies had a lot of steals and each time took the ball down court and put it up for two. The third quarter ended and Heppner took the lead with a score of 42-16.

By the fourth quarter Heppner's defense was working well. The Fillies did have a few too many fouls, which put the Riverside Pirettes up to the line to shoot some free throws. Finally the game was over and Heppner was on top with a score of 56-28.

Pam Orr put in 12 points for the Fillies and also had 12 rebounds. Dana Reid had three steals and Steph Payne had five assists.

"We pretty much controlled the tempo of the game from start to finish. I thought the girls played well, especially in the second half," said Coach Mike Rover.

By TRAVIS HYATT

It's pretty tough to defeat a team that shoots 70 percent from the floor in the first half and has 11 of 12 players score, four in double figures.

The team that did this was none other than the Weston-McEwen TigerScots, who showed how explosive they could be in a 80-45 thumping of the Heppner Mustangs last Saturday at Athena.

Weston-McEwen raised their record to 2-0 in the league. Heppner dropped to 0-2 in the Columbia Basin Conference east and 5-5 overall.

"Our game plan was to try and control the tempo," said Heppner Coach Brent Eggers, "but those two cherry picks and our turnovers killed us." coach Eggers also said that Rod Cole played very well this weekend.

One would think star Center

Hakan Bjorn had a terrific game, but actually he only ended up with 13 points, playing less than half the game. The Mustangs could not get a thing going in the first quarter and by then the game was over. Weston-McEwen stretched their lead to 44-24 at the half.

The TigerScots primarily used their second team in the third quarter and in the fourth finally put in Hakan and the rest of the crew and closed the game with a 35-point victory margin.

Rod Cole again played a very good game, chipping in 13 points and grabbing five rebounds; Greg Orr added 11 for the Mustangs. Mike Younes and Tom Meier had 14 points for the winners. John Bond added 12 assists.

Medic Alert, the best recognized system of emergency medical identification in the world currently serves 1.2 million members in the United States. Medic Alert is a nonprofit, charitable Foundation dedicated to providing a life-protecting system of emergency medical identification for people with hidden medical conditions.

As a nation, we already spend 10 percent of our gross national product on health care—our largest single expenditure, surpassing even education and defense.

The cases of Barney Clark, Karen Quinlan and Jamie Fiske indicate our great need for a national health care policy that will provide guidelines for dealing with the complex issue of health care allocation.

As one step toward the formulation of such a policy, National Medical Enterprises, Inc. recently donated $2 million to the University of Southern California to establish the nation's first endowed chair for the study of the relationships among law, medicine and public policy.

The Norman Topping Chair will study the financial and ethical issues affecting the cost, quality and equity of our health care as a means of determining a long-range health care policy.

The chair honors Dr. Norman Topping, a former Assistant Surgeon General of the United States and associate director of the National Institute of Health. Dr. Topping, now chancellor emeritus for USC, served as the university's seventh president.

National Medical Enterprises is one of the nation's leading health care providers. It owns, operates or manages 339 acute, psychiatric and long-term care hospitals.
