

Livestock Growers to meet Apr. 14

By STEVE CAMPBELL
OSU EXTENSION AGENT
MORROW COUNTY

The Morrow County Livestock Growers and the Morrow County CowBelles are having a spring meeting and dinner on April 14, 1984 at 2:30 p.m. Location will be the Heppner Elks Club in Heppner. This will be a time for everyone in the area to relax a bit, and meet old friends. Also a chance to meet the new Oregon State University Extension Veterinarian and to listen to some excellent speakers. Growers and CowBelles in Umatilla and Gilliam counties are invited to participate as it promises to be a fun event. The CowBelles are arranging the dinner which will cost $6 per person. They also are organizing a wine and cheese tasting event between the meeting and the dinner. Cost of that is still being negotiated. Topics for speakers will be Nutrition, with a cooking demonstration by Sandy Richardson; Trichomoniasis, a potentially severe venereal disease in cattle by Dr. Don Hanse, OSU; the Simplot feeding philosophy and the feeder industry in general by Glen McQuilkin; a slide presentation of the Aleutian Island cattle project that Simplot is involved in by Scott Bradshaw; and a slide program on agriculture in Germany by Brent Fetsch. Brent's program will involve both the growers and the CowBelles.

Garden Clubs begin preparations for fair

BY JUSTINE WEATHERFORD

Representatives of the three garden clubs of south Morrow County met recently in the home of Jane Rawlins, new chairman of the county fair committee, to make some plans for the flower division of this year's fair. In 1983 the members of these clubs were given the management of the fair flower show. They added an outside floral display area which won considerable praise. This year they plan to continue this feature with a few changes and some expansion. The women talked over plans for the various floral exhibits for this August. There will be the usual horticultural section, the houseplant section, a reorganized spacing for artistic creations which will feature the exhibition of wreaths of all types which have been created from natural materials. Those who attended the afternoon's working session were Helen Martin, Loretta Hubbard and Norma Rea from the lone club; Kathy Tellechea and Dorothy Burcham from the Lexington club and Theta Lowe, Jane Rawlins and Justine Weatherford from the Heppner garden club. Kathy Tellechea, president of the new Lexington Garden Club, announced that group will give a cash prize to the person who has the largest number of entries in the fair flower show. The Country Rose store and the lone and Heppner clubs will continue to award the same prizes given at last year's fair.

New Energy Agent joins Extension Service

By BOB COSTA
OSU EXTENSION AGENT

The Oregon State University Extension Service has hired a new energy agent to serve the Eastern Oregon counties of Morrow, Baker, Grant, Harney, Malheur, Umatilla, Union, and Wallowa. Energy agent Robert C. Wright will be located in the Umatilla County office of the OSU Extension Service in Pendleton. David A. Philbrick, coordinator of the OSU Extension energy program, explained that the program encourages voluntary energy conservation and the use of renewable resources by providing information and technical assistance to the residential, commercial and agricultural sectors. Wright can be contacted directly at the Extension Service office in Pendleton or through the Extension Service office in Heppner. Wright has been Conservation Services Director for Midstate Electric Cooperative, Inc. in LaPine since 1982. He has taught adult basic education at Central Oregon

Community College in Bend, and was a high school science teacher in Eugene and Springfield. He has been a Deschutes County Juvenile Services Commissioner, and was a river guide for Oregon River Experiences in Eugene. His work with Midstate Electric Coop. included implementing Bonneville Power Administration programs in irrigated agriculture energy conservation and residential weatherization, and implementing and analyzing data from the BPA-sponsored anemometer-wind generation pilot program at nine study sites. Wright is a 1978 graduate of the University of Oregon. He also attended Washington State University and Central Washington State College. Wright can be contacted directly at the Extension Service office in Pendleton or through the Extension Service office in Heppner. The OSU Extension energy program is conducted in cooperation with the Oregon Department of Energy with funding from the Bonneville Power Administration and the U.S. Department of Energy.

3 local girls make OSU honor roll

Oregon State University has released the names of three Heppner girls achieving a place on the winter term scholastic honor roll. To earn a place on this list, students must carry at least 12 graded hours and maintain a B plus (3.5) average. Marie Van Schoiack, a senior in agricultural science, was among 519 students with a straight-A (4.0) average. Two other local girls, Paula J. Palmer and Ann Van Schoiack earned places on the honor roll.

A lovely decorated cake with lovely arrangement of flowers adorned with lilies, bees and the word "Congratulations," was but by Freida Majeske and served following the dinner. Attending with Mrs. Majeske was her daughter, Pat Wright, and with Catie Padberg, her daughter Muriel and daughter-in-law Eileen Padberg. Gifts were presented the honored members. Door prizes were won by Edith Beers, Hilda Yocom, Leila Palmer and Ruth Robinson.

The cake was shared with the members in the Pioneer Nursing Home, who couldn't be present. The coin drill (a collection taken at each meeting) for the evening was given to the President's project, which is a dietary Board for the home, and a public address system for the assembly with portable speakers. At roll call, there were the honored state visitors and Edith Beers, a member City View Lodge in Portland.

Extension Mini-College dates announced

By BIRDINE TULLIS
Program Assistant
Morrow Co. Extension Service

Information about the 1984 Extension Mini-College at Oregon State University June 18-22 is now available from the Morrow County office of the OSU Extension Service.

This year's program features nearly 50 different classes, workshops and tours. Subjects range from starting a home business and oceanography to aging to how to prepare for the kind of public hearing held by local government.

In addition to the more formal, non-credit classes, an afternoon of tours has been arranged this year. Called "workshops on the move," the tours will visit Willamette Valley farms, the OSU Mark Hatfield Marine Science Center in Newport and museums and theaters in Eugene, among other locations. Highlights this year include the annual meeting of the Oregon Extension Homemakers Council on Monday, June 18. The council co-sponsors Mini-College with the Extension Service. Also meeting on Monday will be the OSU Home Economics Alumni Organization. The two groups will join forces Monday morning to hear a talk by Kinsey Green, OSU home economics dean-designate, who will assume her duties in Corvallis this spring. Green is currently executive officer of the American Home Economics Association.

Other highlights of the 1984 program include evening programs which will focus on water use in the Pacific Northwest, an address on "Families at Work: Stresses and

Learn about estate planning at workshop

By BIRDINE TULLIS
Morrow Co. Extension Service

Many couples and individuals have concerns about what will happen to their property after their death. Estate planning is important whether you have a lot of money or just an average accumulation. Sign up now for a two-part estate planning workshop April 10 and 17.

Alice Mills

Alice Mills Morrow, Oregon State University Extension family economics specialist, will conduct the sessions. Morrow, who is both an attorney and a home economist, will cover such subjects as: a) need for estate planning, b) costs of passing property, c) trusts as a management tool, d) provisions for minor children.

Cost of the workshop is $1.00 per couple, or individual, which covers the cost for the materials needed. If you've failed to pre-register, there is still time to do so by calling the extension office, 676-9642. It appears there will be plenty of space for those who decide at the last minute to attend.

Sessions will be held in Heppner at 2 p.m. at the Morrow Co. fairgrounds, 4-H Annex. Part I is scheduled for April 10, and part II, April 17. Sessions will be held in Irrigon at 7 p.m. at the County Office. Part I is scheduled April 10, Part II, April 17.

$1,000 scholarships available

Junior and senior class high school students who are interested in applying for $1,000 college scholarships should request applications by May 7, 1984 from the Educational Communications Foundation, 721 N. McKinley Road, Lake Forest, Illinois 60045. Any student interested in receiving an application, should send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with a note listing his-her name, address, city, state and zip code, year of graduation and approximate grade point average. Fifty award winners will be selected on the basis of academic performance, involvement in extracurricular activities and need for financial aid.
