Pat Schwarz won the Boy's All-Around, placing second in steer wrestling, fourth in calf roping and fifth in team roping with his partner Brian Kimball of Prairie City.

C. of C. adopts new logo

New gold and black logos will be appearing on the doors of many Heppner businesses in the immediate future. The logo will identify businesses and individuals as members of the Heppner-Morrow Chamber of Commerce. The logo, brainchild of the Chamber board of directors, is just one of many new activities and responsibilities undertaken by the group reported a spokesperson for the organization.

Currently underway is a membership drive, with Doug Smith of Heppner Bowl serving as chairman. This is the first membership drive for the chamber in many years. With the goal of involvement of more local businesses, a committee has formed teams to personally contact both those who have previously belonged, as well as those businesses and agencies not presently members. All businesses and agencies are invited to "join Chamber and help make it an action group that promotes local business and makes our community a better place to live."

New members to be welcomed at this week's meeting

Andrea Ball was sixth in barrel racing; Trisha Mahoney was tenth in goat tying. Hank Vazza, third in boys cow cutting.

May 19th, four members of the team went to Klamath Falls for their high school rodeo. Hank Vazza was second in boys cow cutting, Trisha Mahoney placed fifth in Barrels, fifth in team roping, sixth in breakaway roping seventh in girls cow cutting and tenth in pole bending. Pat Schwarz won the calf roping and steer wrestling and Steve Currin was second in calf roping.

Other projects still in the formative stages are a main street beautification project, more support to local merchants in their activities, co-operation with the newly formed Ione Community Agribusiness club on mutual concerns. The on-going yard of the month, youth reports, and support projects, and other regular Chamber awards and recognition programs will continue.

Anyone interested in the Heppner-Morrow Chamber, or any special activities of the group may address inquiries to: Harley Sager, First Interstate Bank who serves as president; Gerald Pierson, Bank of Eastern Oregon, second vice president, Doug Smith, Heppner Bowl, first vice president; or George Koffler, Bank of E.O., secretary-treasurer.

Aerobathon earns $1,041 for CF

Joyce Hughes's aerobics class in Heppner raised more than $1041 at the Cystic Fibrosis aerobathon on April 23, a figure that represents a lot of dedication and commitment to the fight against cystic fibrosis said a spokesperson for the event.

This outpouring of support came from the tired but determined participants, the generous people who sponsored them, and the businesses that provided prizes and underwrote expenses.

The gift all these individuals gave children with CF is the priceless gift of hope that research will one day soon bring positive results.

All participants will receive prizes in about five weeks. Ruth Ann Lynch collected the most pledges, $358.50 and Bonnie Campbell with $138.05 in pledges, was the second highest.
