

No more tables are available for Artifactory

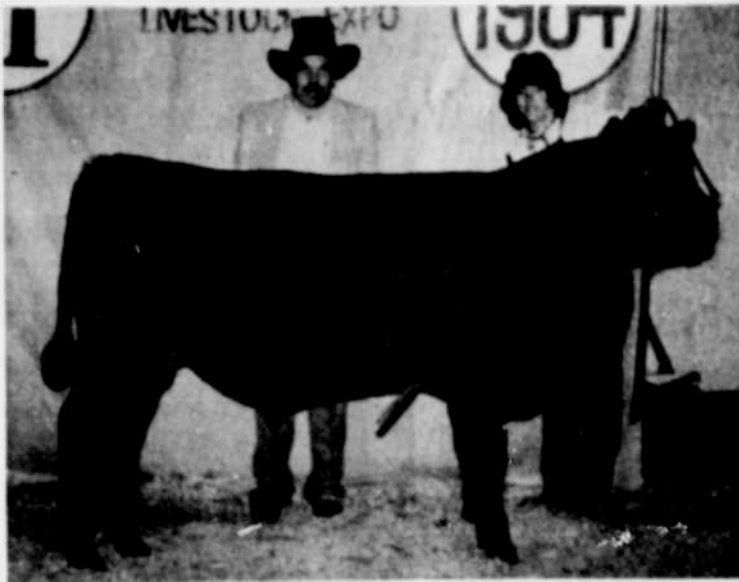

By JUSTINE WEATHERFORD
About two weeks ago Joan Records, the Heppner-Ione Branch of the American Association of University Women's table reservation chairman for the Saturday, Dec. 1, Artifactory announced that there are no more tables available. Joan and her assistant Marie Lane state that they are keeping a "waiting list" of people who want any tables that might, for some reason, become available by sale time, Saturday, Dec. 1, at 10 a.m. The big sale will again be held in the Fairgrounds Pavilion Building.

April Sykes and Cara Costa are the overall co-chairmen for the 1984 Artifactory. Also on the committee are Ann Spicer and Betty Reitmann, chairmen for the sandwich, pie and coffee selling by AAUW. Marion Abrams and Nancy Bruch are chairmen for special events, such as, demonstrations, Santa's visit, etc. Shirley Campbell and Justine Weatherford are responsible for publicizing the December 1 event.

Individuals and various groups have contracted for the more than 40 sales tables; AAUW members have set aside some tables for their use in serving the light lunch and refreshments they have planned.

Many are anticipating seeing Gordon Keown, wood craftsman, and Mrs. Keown, who does unusual crocheting and is a master of egg shell art. The Keowns from Hermiston and other favorite yearly exhibitors are set to come to Heppner again. New persons coming will include Bill Barrows, a potter from Elgin, Bob Koenig, a leathercraft artist from Meacham and Moscow, Idaho's "Copper and Stones by Jones".

A woodsy smell will pervade the 4-H Annex area when the Heppner Garden Club conducts its Annual Christmas Greens Workshop, and where the South Morrow County Artists will display and sell their productions during the hours of the Artifactory beginning at 10 a.m. on December 1.

Tarnasky wins CBEC director slot

At the 40th annual meeting of Columbia Basin Electric Cooperative, Inc. held last Thursday, Nov. 8 in Fossil, Ed Tarnasky was elected to fill the two-year Heppner City Zone 8 position. Donna Moeller opposed him for the only contested director position nominated by the committee earlier this year.

DVA warns of insurance fraud

The Department of Veterans' Affairs office in Salem has sent out a memo to County Veteran Service Officers stating that a World War II Veterans Insurance Refund letter is being sent out to some Veterans. The letter states that the U.S. Congress recently passed a bill giving all world war veterans a dividend of 65 cents per $1,000 on GI Insurance for each month of service regardless of whether any insurance was held.

This letter is a hoax says the Morrow County Veterans' Affairs officer. There are several different forms of this letter being distributed. It seems this Insurance Refund hoax surfaces periodically. "If you get such a letter, please disregard it," concluded the veterans' affairs officer.

PUC announces telephone device restrictions

Publicity Utility Commissioner Gene Maudlin announced in a recent news release that he had ordered the establishment of statewide restrictions on the use of telephone automatic dialing and announcing devices (ADADs).

All telephone companies in the state have been instructed to file tariffs by December 1 to implement the restrictions, which will include:

- ADADs used under permitted circumstances must disconnect and release the phone line if the called party hangs up or says nothing in response to the call.
- ADADs must not be used before 9 a.m. nor after 9 p.m., except in emergencies.
- ADADs cannot be used to call unlisted, unpublished, emergency, or in-WATS numbers, or to call more than one number held by a called party.

The rules were formulated following several months of study, including a public hearing on July 17. Comments submitted on the issue ranged from proposals that the machines be banned to requests that there be no restrictions on their use.

Maudlin said use of the machines should be allowed, but only under certain circumstances and restrictions.

"These restrictions will reduce the annoyance caused by automatic dialing devices while maintaining the opportunity to use them," Maudlin said.

He said examples of situations in which ADADs would be permitted include businesses calling to remind customers of appointments and school districts notifying parents of student absences. Individuals or businesses also could use an ADAD solely for automatic contact with emergency services agencies.

The new rules require that within 30 seconds after an ADAD call is answered, the called party must be given the identity of the caller, the purpose and length of the call, the cost of any goods or services being offered, and other information required of all solicitation calls.

Other provisions require ADADs must disconnect when they call an answering machine.

The new rules will replace any existing phone company restrictions on ADADs. Most companies, however, currently have no restrictions. They will not apply to calls made from outside of Oregon.

Under the regulations, telephone companies will notify the PUC and the ADAD user if a violation occurs. The PUC may order disconnection of service if a user refuses to comply with the rules.

Vine workshop set at fairgrounds

By JUSTINE WEATHERFORD
Recently the making of decorative wreaths from pliable vines has become very popular. On Thursday evening, Nov. 15, the public is invited to come to the 4-H Dorm at the Morrow County Fairgrounds to learn about this art.

The "no admission charge" workshop is being offered as a community service by the Heppner Garden Club. A supply of various vine materials will be there for public use. Each person attending is asked to bring along garden clippers.

Annie Kitching will be the guest instructor. She has had several years of experience in creating vine wreaths.

Beverages and cookies will be provided by members of the Heppner Garden Club. This workshop will begin at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 15.

City Council opens bids

At the Monday, Nov. 5 Heppner City Council meeting, the council directed Heppner City Attorney Bill Kuhn to approach Morrow County Court and ask them to enforce the dog licensing statute which has been a law since 1931. The action was the result of information concerning packs of dogs roaming the city which had been presented by a delegation of citizens.

In other business, the council:

- heard a presentation by Bob Harris describing the building proposed to house the senior mealsite.
- opened bids for proposals for the required equipment to protect electrical pump motors. The mayor appointed a committee to study the bids.

-heard a request from Jack Loyd for permission to build a wooden basketball court on a portion of Hager Park where no grass has been seeded. A committee will report back to the council on the matter.
