Proposed pound draws criticism

In an effort to ensure that no population can dominate construction of the center, Mayor Cara Curry asked that the city council hold a meeting on Tuesday, March 8, to discuss the issues surrounding overconcentration of athletes. At the meeting, Eastbrook Christian Church will present a report on its plans to build a hotel near the center. The meeting will be held in the council chambers, starting at 6:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Under the city's new dog control ordinance, dogs that are not on a leash will be impounded for a year. Under the new law, it is illegal to leave a dog unattended in the street if it is not on a leash. The dog will be impounded for a year, after which time it will be destroyed if it is not retrieved.

The council also approved a request from Howard Perpich at Pioneer Picnic, asking for the support of the Pioneer Picnic. The council will consider a resolution to support the Pioneer Picnic.

A new event, the pentathlon, will be added to the Special Olympics. The event will consist of five events: swimming, running, cycling, running, and shooting.
