Leadership training course offered

Applications are being accepted now for attending the fourth State Training Institute of the Extension Family Community Leadership Program in Oregon offered October 7-10.

The training is free and open to anyone regardless of age, sex, race, or religion. Focus of the training and the goal of the program is to prepare citizens to become involved and effective in solving community problems, says Dawn Hawkins, Umatilla County Extension Agent. An interest in family issues is expected and past community involvement is desirable but not required.

Participants from Umatilla and Morrow counties will join other Oregon volunteers for the four-day conference in Newport. They will hear national and local speakers and meet elected officials from Oregon cities and counties. In small group exercises they will learn by doing how to form a grassroots organization and how to make presentations to decision makers.

"Conference participants will have an opportunity to work in a mock neighborhood setting and solve a common problem," said Hawkins.

Volunteers will be asked to pledge two days per month for one year to work on local activities of the Family Community Leadership program. Training related expenses will be paid by the program which has been funded by a Kellogg Foundation grant in six western states.

Family Community Leadership is jointly sponsored by Oregon State University Extension Service and the Extension Homemakers Council.

Applications can be obtained by contacting: Birdine Tullis P.O. Box 397, Heppner, OR 97836, 676-9642 or Dawn Hawkins, 13 S.W. Nye, Pendleton, OR 97801, 276-7111, Ext. 235.

Swanson yard earns May honors

Ione's Yard-of-the-month for May belongs to Jim and Monica Swanson. Beauty, Utility and Minimum maintenance are the goals they have worked toward since they took over responsibility from Jim's parents Gar and Irene, reports an Ione Garden Club spokesperson.

The yard is neatly framed by a fence and well-placed variety of evergreen and deciduous trees. One feature that contributes much to both beauty and reduced work is the red lava rock mulch.

Color is provided this month by pink dogwoods, and a corner with creeping phlox and two poppies of unusual hues.

The back yard is as well arranged as the front with a play area for the children, shade in the right places and spots of color planned for a succession through the seasons.

One unique feature of the back yard is a tulip tree.
