14 Morrow County teachers attend health conference

By JANE DEAN

June 9-14, fourteen teachers from Morrow County attended the Seaside IX Health Promotion Conference. The conference is sponsored by the Oregon Department of Education. The health committee chose the theme "Expose Yourself to Wellness" for this year's conference.

Around 800 educators attended this conference. Most of the attendees were from the state of Oregon, but a few educators came from Alaska, Maine, Michigan, Virginia and New Mexico. Most of these teams were attending to gain information on how to organize a health conference in their state.

Guest health speakers and presenters were brought in from across the nation to help make this conference a super experience for those attending. The participants attended sessions and workshops on wellness for life - from pre-school to nursing home aged. The presenters taught good nutrition, exercises, CPR, First Aide, How Students Learn, Safety, Stress, Burnout, Drug and Alcohol, Humor and Happiness, Suicide, Sexual Abuse, Domestic Violence, Aging Process, Self-esteem, Heart, Foot and back problems and snacks workshop.

Dutch Savage, a former professional wrestler, was there to promote his drug abuse program in the Oregon Schools. Slim Goodbody, T.V. health personality, arrived in his body suit and did a presentation on how educators can turn students on to taking care of their body. Many of the presenters autographed their textbooks which were sold at the conference.

This conference started the day with a 6 a.m. exercise session. Either a swim, walk-jog on the beach or aerobics. After breakfast the day was spent in workshops. The programs ended by 10 p.m. There was tight scheduling which kept all participants very involved. So many good workshops were offered. There was no way, one person could attend all of these.

The Morrow County team split in different directions to try to cover most subjects offered. The teachers attending were Terry McElligott from Columbia Junior High, Betty Rietmann and Laura Broderick from Lone, Doug Sheribon, Phyllis Payne, Barb Stefani and Barb Collins from Heppner Elementary, Barb Stefani and Brent Eggers from Heppner High School, Larry French from Riverside High School, Robbie Tye, Marilyn Ornelas, Jane Dean and Sheila Gilmartin-Needham from Sam Boardman Elementary, Sheila Gilmartin-Needham from A.C. Houghton, Dave Larson, from A.C. Houghton broke his hand in a softball game the day before the conference and was unable to attend. Carol Marchek, Boardman Day Care Director, completed the Morrow County team.

The team wore lavender T-shirts with a fitness design made by Sheila Gilmartin-Needham, and cowboy hats to represent Morrow County. Two donated potato centerpieces from the Boardman Garden Club and made by Martha Baker, were donated to the conference raffle. These depicted our area. Also, Carol Marchek donated a jar of Morrow County honey and a jar of pickled asparagus to represent products from the county.

Plans to garden and golf

Marylee Hiemstra

After 19 years as the secretary at Lone Schools, Marylee Hiemstra is retiring, at the same time her husband, Ed, who is retiring his teaching position at Heppner High School. Prior to moving to Heppner to accept positions with the school district, the couple considered Nampa, Idaho, their hometown.

Hiemstra says that after adjusting to retirement, she plans to spend her time gardening and golfing and adds that her husband says they will watch their grandkids play basketball.

She says that she enjoys her years of working at lone schools and will miss it. In recent years, past graduates of Lone High School have stopped by just to visit and to introduce their children to her.

She began as secretary the same year Harold Beggs became the principal at Lone. He moved on after four years, but she had four other principals also: Dennis Brandon - two years, Don Flug - one year, John Edmundson - three years, and Chuck Starr - nine years.

Chamber of Commerce to organize at Boardman

By near unanimous vote, the Boardman Commercial Club last week decided to change its organization to a Chamber of Commerce.

The change will broaden the club's membership base, and its scope of activities, club chairman Art Kegler said. Boardman real estate broker John Pragg has donated use of office space at Mountain Valley Land Co. for the Chamber, and says a phone line will be installed there soon for Chamber business.

Housing needed for Cub Scouts

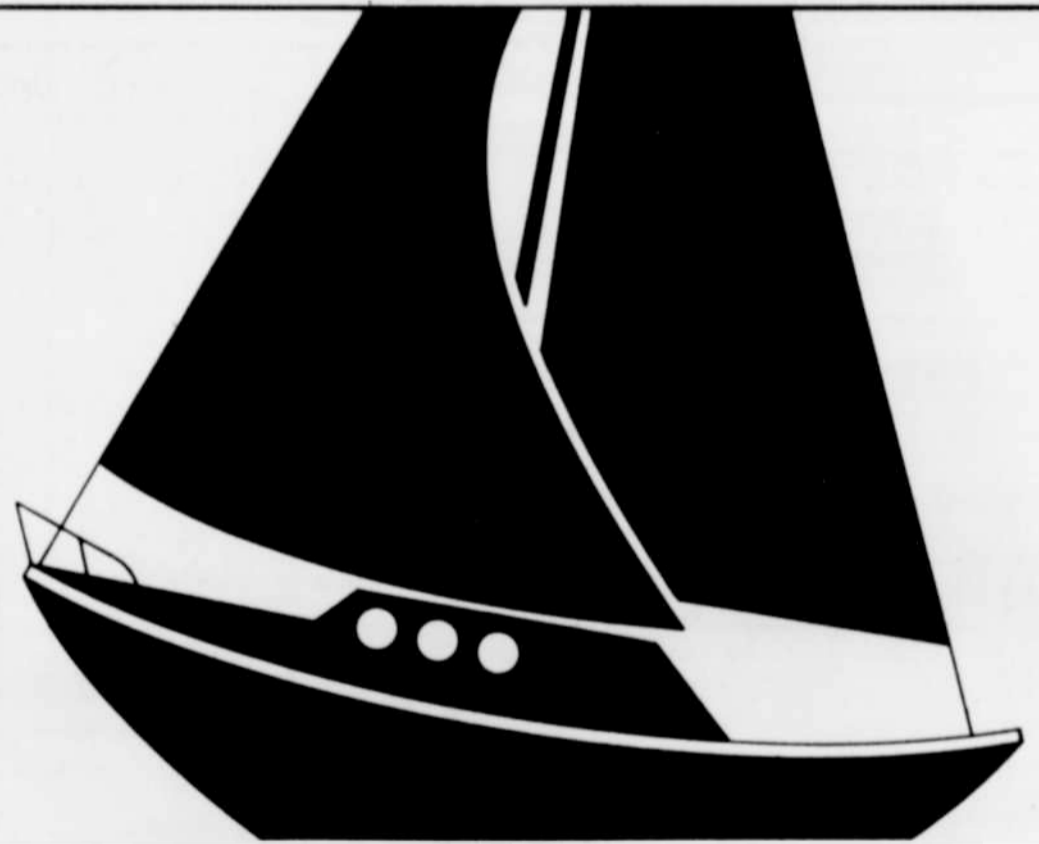

Time is fast-approaching for Cub Scout Day Camp, July 8-12. Camp director Loa Cox, Hermiston, had planned a fun-filled week for all who attend. Local den leaders and volunteers who will staff the camp have been registering boys and making preparations. Because nine Cub Scouts from the Spray area will be attending the camp during the day this year, Heppner camp co-director Martha Munkers is asking for volunteers willing to house one or more of the boys during the week.

For more information about day camp or to volunteer to house a Cub Scout for a week, call Munkers, 989-8532.

Still time to enroll in B-Ball Camp

There is still time to enroll in the Fillie Basketball Camp which will be held at Heppner High School the week of July 29 - August 2. "Fifteen girls representing Heppner, Lone, Lexington, and Monument have already enrolled and there's room for 15-20 more," according to Camp Director, Mike Royer.

The camp will be held daily, 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Cost of the camp is $35. Applications are available at Hutch's Helper, Heppner Gazette-Times, Lott's Electric, Coast to Coast, the Shoe Box, or by writing to Fillie Basketball Camp, P.O. Box 185, Heppner, 97836.
