Ceremony marks opening of Boardman airport

The rain and wind of July 31 couldn't dampen Port of Morrow Manager Steve Lindstrom's spirit as he began to paint out the X's that have marked the Boardman Airport closed. The airstrip is now open to public use for the first time in its 43 year history.

The "X-purgating" ceremony was a milestone for Port of Morrow employees. Port of Morrow began petitioning Boeing and the state of Oregon to turn over the lease on the 2,700 acre tract and the airstrip in 1982. Boeing subsequently turned the lease back to the state of Oregon. November 8 of last year, the state leased the property to the Port of Morrow for 55 years at $3,400 per year with an option to purchase. Although the airstrip is now open its use has not been approved by the Federal Aviation Administration or the state Aeronautics Division. Port officials are confident it will be approved. The Port has changed its insurance coverage on the strip from "passive" to "active" status.

Local pilots Bruce Nichols, Greg Prior, and Ken Dack flew their private planes in for the ceremony.

The U.S. Army Air Corps built the airfield between 1941 and 1943. During the same period other structures were erected including a barracks for the 200 men stationed there. (None of those buildings exist today.) Sometime during WWII, the Army Air Corps became the Air Force and they continued to use the air field until after the war. It was closed for a time and reopened about 1950, but closed again within a few years. Some time in the 1950s, the U.S. Navy took over the property and still use a portion of it for a bombing range. In 1963, the airstrip with more than 90,000 acres of land was leased to Boeing. They had intended to build an aerospace industrial park which never materialized.

The Port of Morrow Commission will hold a meeting August 28 at 1 p.m. to study the environmental assessment and review the master plan for the airport.

Juveniles confess to Irrigon crime

Two juveniles both of Irrigon ages 14 and 15 have confessed to breaking into Buffham's Ranch and Home in Irrigon last week. The youghs did an estimated $10,000 in damages to the grounds, building and contents. Among other damages they pulled out shrubbery, broke windows, spilled paint and scattered feed and dog food. "They literally trashed the place," said Morrow County Deputy Sheriff Jim Hankins. They also stole two three-wheel motorcycles belonging to Doug Pope of Boardman. The suspects left the scene on the three-wheelers.

The motorcycles were recovered later. One of the suspects indicated his involvement in the vandalism while being questioned by Mike Cahill, Irrigon Chief of Police, about the burglary at the Assembly of God Church in Irrigon July 27. Both suspects were taken to the Morrow County Annex in Irrigon and interviewed. They confessed to trashing Buffham's and three other Irrigon burglaries, the Assembly of God Church, C&H Market and A.C. Houghton School.

During the interview, one youth said they had trashed the outside then entered the building looking for cash. When they were unable to find any cash, they decided to trash the inside as well.

Both suspects were turned over to their parents and referred to juvenile authorities.

Buffham's Ranch and Home is owned by Denis Buffham of Irrigon. The building is the property of George and Grace Kenney.

4-Hers learn about Columbia waterway

In an effort to learn about the Columbia River waterway system and the agricultural economy that helps support it, a number of Multnomah County 4-H'ers have been touring Morrow County. The tour is part of an exchange program conceived by Multnomah County 4-H agent Betty Morrison.

The Portlanders have toured wheat farms, feed lots, equipment shops, Morrow County Grain Growers and finished their tour at the Port of Morrow where they visited Gourmet Brands, the waterfront a.. Inland Container Co.

The 4-H'ers are here to learn just how complex the system is and to help them understand the depressed economy said Multnomah 4-H leader Dave Grove, some of them are seeing farming for the first time.

Spin Pal gives holders of losing tickets chance to win at lottery

The Director of the Oregon Lottery, Robert W. Smith, announced the official start of the Lottery's new supplemental prize program, Spin Pal on August 9. The concept had been approved earlier by the Lottery Commission, July 23, but implementation of the program had to await distribution of Spin Pal rules and the official Spin Pal envelopes to the Lottery's nearly 3,000 authorized retail outlets.

"The rules and envelopes will be in the hands of about 90 percent of our retailers by August 16th," said Smith. "People may start sending in their five valid non-winning tickets in the special blue envelopes any time," he added.

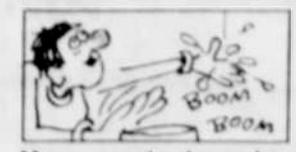
Smith's announcement came in anticipation of the first Spin Pal drawing to be held Saturday, August 17 on the Oregon Lottery Jackpot Show, shown weekly on U-H-F Television Station KECH, Channel 22 in Salem and on KDRV, Channel 12 in Medford at 6:30 p.m. The 30-minute show also is carried by several cable television companies throughout much of the state including the Mid-Willamette and South interior valleys and the South Oregon Coast.

Each week the Lottery will pick a Spin Pal entry to couple with each of the 10 Jackpot Prize contestants. As the contestants spin the wheel on the Lottery's Jackpot show, the Spin Pal will receive a cash prize based on the Jackpot contestant's winning slot.

Smith cautioned those entering their five non-winning tickets for the Spin Pal drawings to use only the special blue "official" evelopes obtainable at authorized lottery retail outlets. "Any of these tickets received at Lottery Headquarters in other than the official envelopes will simply be discarded," Smith said.

"All Spin Pal entries must be received at Lottery Headquarters in Salem by the Wednesday prior to Saturday's spin to be eligible for that week's drawing," Smith added. "All entries not selected will be destroyed. However, players may enter as often as they like," he said.

Smith said Spin Pal should add a new dimension of fun and excitement to Oregon's Lottery and will give even more players a chance to win.



Many people have believed they could make rain by imitating thunder.
