Fifth Quarter

Sports with Mike Oths

Hey baseball fans, I love ya. It's time for the horsehide season to turn to the playoffs, and then to the Fall Classic. With any luck at all, the snow will hold off in Toronto and they'll be able to get all the games in. Sometimes, I think that the best thing for baseball would be for the World Series to get snowed out for about a week. Maybe then the Lords of the Game would begin to seriously consider the folly of the boys of summer slogging away in November.

As for the playoffs, there are some intriguing match-ups. The first-time Bluejays will be battling the KC Royals, who have a long history of coming up a buck short. The Royals are something like 1-4 or 1-5 in the league championship series. Take the experience and George Brett and say Kansas City in five. (By the way, I still hate the idea of a 7-game playoff; it takes away the sudden death drama of the five-game playoff.)

In the NL, the youthfull Cardinals-built on speed and pitching-take on the wing-and-a-prayer Dodgers. The boys from LA won the division mainly on the strength of a two-month hot streak, and totally on the shoulders of Pedro Guerrero and their starting pitching. Look for the bullpen to do in the Dodgers: Cards in six.

For the postseason awards, how about MVP: Don Mattingly and Dave Parker; Cy Young: Dwight Gooden and Bret Saberhagen; Rookie of the Year: Vince Coleman and Tom Henke.

63-0 seems to be a popular score for Oregon football teams these days-I hope it isn't catching. The Beavers ran into a real hornet's nest at USC last Saturday. The Ducks put on their usual day-late-and-a-dollar-short act against the Huskies, playing them though but losing nonetheless. Like most Oregon fans, I'm tired of moral victories.

Right now the Pac-10 race looks to be wide open, with any number of teams eligible for the Rose Bowl. Given the impressive starts of Iowa and Michigan, maybe the Big-10 will even win for once. Don't bet on it, however.

Quickly now, can you name five of the superstars of pro wrestling? I can't. Even if I could I wouldn't admit it to anybody.

Crystal Ball

The ultimate dilemma: Our fearless predictor Brent had his back against the wall with the Sunday Night Game. Does he stick to old loyalties and back the Cowboys, or does he root for the Giants knowing he has a shot at becoming the first predictor in CB history to have a perfect 14-0 week. Rumor has it that he sold Tom Landry down the river, but it didn't help as the Giants fumbled away the victory. Now if we could only get him to predict against the Beavers.

Last week's guest, Sandy Holtz, did very well, even beating her boss. He apparently is keeping her on the staff, on the condition that she makes his selections for him from now on.

Dave also becomes the first selector to pick against Seattle, going out on a limb with Atlanta this week.

Our guest selector is Tom McElligott, whose extensive football knowledge was obtained at that collegiate powerhouse, Gonzaga U.

Some pretty gaudy numbers for the predictors this week, by far the best of the season. But remember, it's a long season.

Standings: Overall (last week): George 31-11 (11-3), Dale 31-11 (13-1), Brent 29-13 (12-2), Dave 26-16 (10-4), Mike 26-16 (12-2.)

JV Cards out-vollied

By Karla Davison

The Ione Cardinal's junior varsity played the Culver Bulldog's junior varsity, Saturday, Oct. 5. The Bulldogs defeated the Cards in two matches 15-11, 15-11.

In both games Ione got off to a good start, only to lose it as the matches progressed. Both teams played exceptionally well and had a lot of spectacular plays. Angie Rudisill led the Cards in serves with eight, and Michelle Beeson in serves received with nine.

Due to other scheduling the varsity team didn't play.

Winter wheat production forecast

Winter wheat production in Oregon is estimated at 52.8 million bushels based on conditions as of September 1. This is the same as the August 1 forecast, but is a decrease of 20 percent from the 1984 crop. The average yield of winter wheat, at 55.0 bushels per acre, is eight bushels less than last year's record yield. Acreage for harvest is estimated to be 960,000 acres, 9 percent less than last year's level of 1,050,000 acres. All wheat production, including spring wheat, amounts to 56.2 million bushels, 18 percent less than the 1984 production. Total United States all wheat production is forecast at 2.4 billion bushels, eight percent less than 1984, and one percent less than 1983's production.

Oregon's barley production is estimated to be 19.8 million bushels, up 14 percent from 1984 and the highest production since 1958. The average yield per acre, at 60.0 bushels, is actually down two bushels from 1984; but the acreage for harvest at 330,000 acres, is up 50,000 acres from last year.
