Letters to the Editor

Upset by rudeness of audience

To the Editor:
This past Thursday was the Christmas program at our grade school. There was a large crowd gathered to see their young children perform. The children were very orderly and did their best. I enjoyed hearing songs with a spiritual tone to them.

What upset me so much was the rudeness and in difference their parents, grandparents, and friends. There was talking and movement (people going in and out) going on while the children were performing. The whole back section was empty before the program was over. It was very evident that these parents and grandparents came only to watch their own child and when they were done it was time for them to move on.

The rudeness was not only to the children performing but to others in the audience who were trying to listen. It was very distracting and I was not sitting in the back. The talking was going on throughout the audience.

How do we expect to teach our children to respect others to be thoughtful and considerate of others when these are the examples that adults are showing them.

A Concerned Parent,
Chris Adelman

Legislature is full-time job

To the Editor:
In reply to your recent letter of legislative pay increases I would like to make a few comments.

I voted against all pay increases, however, the $150 for larger districts I feel is warranted and needed.

As a state senator representing a third of the state of Oregon is it fair to be paid the same as a senator in Salem, Oregon? I have to maintain two homes when in session, I also have to eat my meals out and obtain lodging when in Salem on state business.

There is a real misconception who actually serves in Salem legislation. Legislators don't go home to their farms, jobs and businesses. Most of them have one job; being a legislator. I was a businessman when I went to Salem, but I am no longer.

To be a good senator in my district is a full time job. If you don't believe me come and live with me for a month.

My answer to the problem is better management. With 13 interim committees, six statutory committees, 18 statutory with legislative participation and legislative work on other government business, add to this at least six months of session in odd numbered years. This is guaranteed full time employment for legislators.

The problem with legislators and government is we pay too much for too little. We need a change in the legislative power structure of Oregon. There has to be a better way to run a ship.

Sincerely
(s) Eugene D. Timms
State Senator
