

Participation down for fifth annual walk/run

One hundred ninety-four walkers and runners participated in this year's fifth annual Rolling Hills Run. Last year, 230 walkers and runners registered for the event. Fewer local runners competed this year, said a spokesperson for the event; however, participation of runners and walkers who came from other areas was good. Proceeds from this year's Walk/Run will finance Impact Training for south Morrow County teachers. Impact Training is a program to train staff members to identify and support students with alcohol or drug abuse problems.

The oldest male and female participants were Vern Willis and Carolyn Fatland. Overall finishers in the men's 10k were first place-Mike King, second place-Tim Legue, and third place-Al Beck. Overall finishers in the women's 10k were first place-Susan McNeerney, second place-Sandy Ott, and third place-Becky Muck. Place winners in the 5 and 10k by age grouping follow:

Logging safety seminar slated

The only logging safety seminar planned for eastern Oregon will be held in LaGrande, on April 19, by the Accident Prevention Division of the Workers' Compensation Department.

John Goodman, APD's Bend region manager, said the meeting will start at 7:30 a.m. in Room 201, Hoke Hall, Eastern Oregon State College. LaGrande is included in the APD's Bend region.

Goodman said the program will include a presentation on controlling losses and injuries, plus a discussion of recent logging fatalities.

Goodman urges all area loggers to bring their spouses and employees to the free seminar. For further information, call him at 388-6066, Bend.

Fair and Rodeo Court sponsors horse race

The Morrow County Fair and Rodeo Court pose with owners, trainers, jockey, and "Lady Ruffles", winner of the Morrow County Race at Portland Meadows race track.

On Sunday, April 12, Queen Dawn Timms and princesses Sandi Wright and Missy Schoonover sponsored a Thoroughbred race at Portland Meadows on behalf of the Morrow County Fair and Rodeo.

The six furlong maiden claiming race was won by "Lady Ruffles" owned by James Carver, Sr. The horse's trainer Gary Roberts picked up the blanket donated by Bob Hoskins as a prize for the Morrow County Race.

An added excitement for the Court was that each held a $2 ticket on the winning horse.

Attending with the court were family and friends: Lawrence and Sharon and baby Shelly Schoonover; Pat Wright, Brian and Sharon Timms; Court Director Mickey Madison and her husband Scott and the Court Chaperone Gail Papineau.

Mickey Madison said that she hoped the Morrow County Race could become an annual event at Portland Meadows.

Register for Mini-College

Register now for the 1986 Mini-College at Oregon State University, June 24-27. Pick up your registration form, as well as a complete description of all classes, at the Extension Office in the new Pettyjohn Office Building in Heppner.

This year's program offers more than 40 different classes ranging from family communications to stained glass, quilting, to soup making taught by Sandi Richardson and a look at the history and government of Costa Rica.

The registration deadline is June 10, says Birdine Tullis, OSU Extension Assistant in Morrow County. The Mini-College is sponsored by the Extension Service and Oregon Extension Homemakers Council.

Fulltime participants can reserve a room in an OSU residence hall and take their meals in a University cafeteria. People close to the Corvallis campus may commute from home for each day's program.

Mini-College activities open Tuesday afternoon, June 24, with the OEHC annual meeting. All Mini-College participants are welcome to attend. The council represents participants in the Extension study group program.
