City planners approve mobile home application

By Avon Melby

Heppner Planning Commission approved an application for placing a mobile home on property owned by Kenneth Key on cemetery hill at a meeting last night.

Key, who first appeared before the city council requesting permission to use city water in February, told the planners he is asking the city to annex the property. He also said he planned on building a home on the two-acre plot at a later date.

Only two of the four members present voted in favor. One member thought the hill should be kept for homes only.

The location, in the city's urban growth boundary, is zoned R-2, so if he is allowed to annex the property he will have to obtain an additional approval before the mobile can be used on the property.

The Monday night action cleared the way for Key to go ahead and make his home there in case he is turned down by the city in his request for annexation.

The city is limited in annexing that property because it is not adjacent to the city limits, but is owned by the Corps of Engineers as boundary around Willow Dam and lake. City Attorney Bill Kuhn has requested the Corps allow the city to take back part of the area adjoining Key's property.

In the state required update of the city's comprehensive plan, discussion centered on need of street repair but no decision was reached. Kuhn said a representative of the state planning office would be attending a later meeting explaining what was wanted in the updating work.

Commission adopts 1986 Big Game seasons

Staff proposals for big game hunting seasons in 1986 contained some major changes, including extensive limited-entry hunts for elk in north-eastern Oregon. However, the final regulations adopted May 31 by the Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission took a more conservative approach.

General Rocky Mountain bull elk seasons in popular Blue and Wallowa Mountain hunt units were not approved as limited-entry areas for this year. These units will remain open to all Rocky Mountain bull tag holders.

Limited entry was approved for units in the Ochoco-Malheur Zone, which includes areas around Prineville, John Day and Burns. Hunters planning to hunt these, and other southeast areas, will be required to enter the controlled hunt drawing.

The deadline for submitting applications for all controlled deer and elk hunts will be July 15. Applications received after that date will be ineligible for the computer drawing.

Regulation sheets containing information on controlled hunts and general seasons will be available at license dealer outlets by the fourth week of June.

The commission has approved a new general bull elk season hunt area comprising the management units along the Cascades. This season will have a single hunt period running from October 18 through October 26.

General Roosevelt elk season in what is now called the "Coast" area will be similar to 1985. The first hunt period will be November 8-11. The second period will run from November 15 through November 21.

Rocky Mountain elk general seasons will be: first period, October 29 through November 2; and second period, November 8-16.

Mule deer hunters will once again see different season lengths of seven or 12 days, depending on hunt unit. The season opens October 4.

There will also be very limited rifle buck hunting allowed in north-eastern Oregon units that had been closed since 1984. These tags will be dispensed through the computer drawing process.

Low buck ratios in the Murderers Creek, Northside, Sumpter, and Juniper North Steens units prompted the commission to approve permit-entry seasons for those areas. Hunters must enter the drawing to hunt these areas during the regular season.

Murderers and Northside units each received an allotment of 2,500 permits. The Sumpter Unit will have 300 permits, and the Juniper-North unit, 500 permits.

Black-tailed deer season will be similar to 1985. The season will open October 4 and run through November 5. Hunters choice will be in effect again this year in north-western Oregon during the last five days of the general season. The Willamette Unit hunter choice period was cut back to include only the month of November. Hunters in that unit will be restricted to bucks-only during October.

Southwestern Oregon units will feature controlled hunts for antlerless of spike deer, requiring a permit drawing. The commission eliminated a proposed 500-tag hunt in the Sixes Unit, and cut back the Rogue Unit proposed allocation from 2,000 to 750 tags.

Most of these southwest controlled seasons begin October 11 and run through November 5. More than 10,000 permits have been allocated for these hunts.

The theme for this summer will focus on "Community": what it means to live in a Christian oriented community, my responsibilities to all the communities to which I belong, and how to make my day-to-day life more Christ centered will all be parts of it.

CAMP SHOULD BE FUN, of course, so these issues will be approached in a challenging and enjoyable way.
