New managers at Wagon Wheel

Lil Majors and Judy and Dave McCurry are the new managers of the Wagon Wheel cafe and lounge. The restaurant has a new menu and will open at 6 a.m. daily except Sunday when it will open at 8 a.m. They plan to have live music every Friday and Saturday night.

Majors is originally from Heppner but has spent some time in Pendleton and the Willamette Valley. She managed the Relay Station in Pendleton before she sold it three years ago. She has been back in Heppner for a year. Her family is grown, but she has two sisters in the Heppner area.

The McCurrys have four children: Melissa, David, Michelle, and Kim. Judy worked at the Wagon Wheel under a previous manager and both have managed and worked at bars in the Portland area.

"We decided to settle in Heppner," Dave said, "because it's the friendliest place around."

Spicer and Kuhn are preparing packets of information which will be mailed to interested architects as soon as the city's bonding agent gives his approval, Spicer said, possibly within the next two weeks. Architects will use information in the packets and perhaps visit Heppner in order to prepare bid proposals, she said. The process may take as long as two months.

After an architect is selected, he will prepare information for contractors to submit bids.
