until the water output is increased," he added.

The reasons for the $6,000 maintenance cost was explained in depth as guests toured the well and pump station, aeration building, incubation and chilling pump rooms, computerized alarm system, and the starter tanks.

Jack Palmer, one of the hatcheries six Fish and Wildlife employees acting as tour guides, pointed out the 32 race ways with the capacity to hold 52,000 gallons of water with 14,000 gallons a minute flowing continuously from one end to the other in each pond.

The fingerlings in the race ways are feed "better than a ton of feed a day with our automatic feeders," he added.

Jim Skaar, Fish and Wildlife Technician, explained, "when the fish reach the eight-inch smolting stage, a fish pump is used to pump them into a 5,000 gallon liberation truck filled with cooled water collected from the Grande Rhonde and Innaha, to get ready for their trip to the acclimation and release ponds at the Wallowa Hatchery, Big Canyon Creek and Little Sheep Creek, located in northeastern Oregon." "We should start hauling in rides will be available to those who have no transportation but need them for such things as doctor visits, and other necessary trips. They do not have to be either Senior Citizens, handicapped, or over age 50.

A survey to be used in the application is now underway in the county to determine the need for the new bus. Volunteers are also determining the medical needs and preferences of residents. In addition they will be telling people of the many medical services now available to county residents, Carlson said.

February," he added. A buffet was hosted through-out the day by Betty Hill, wife of hatchery manager, Ray Hill, and Kathy Gribble, wife of assistant manager, Mike Gribble.

Answers trivia question

Tareena Nash was the winner of last week's Heppner Gazette-Times/Charlie's Pizza Trivia Contest.

Tareena correctly answered that the phone rings at The White House when you dial (202) 456-1414.

Tareena may pick up her gift certificate for a large pizza and pitcher of pop from Charlie's Pizza in Heppner.

This week's trivia question is: who portrayed the character Wally Cleaver in the TV series "Leave it to Beaver"?

If you think you know the answer, or would like to take a guess, then use the entry blank in this week's issue, and enter either at the G-T or Charlie's Pizza.

The first correct entry drawn each week wins a large pizza and pitcher of pop from Charlie's.
