Parry Center celebrates 120th

An old fashioned Ice Cream Social—a family reunion on the campus at 3415 SE Powell Boulevard from 2-5 p.m., Sunday, September 13—will celebrate the 120th anniversary of Parry Center for Children.

As part of the celebration, Parry Center is seeking to make contact with former residents, staff members, volunteers and friends who are still in the state. They are invited to return to the campus, tour the buildings and meet old friends.

for emotionally disturbed children, providing both residential and outpatient treatment to about 500 children a year. It initiated Oregon's first treatment program for emotionally disturbed children in 1959.

Before that time, severely disturbed children were sent to the state mental hospital and basically "warehoused" in adult facilities.

The agency has had several names but only one goal since its founding in 1867—"to care for children who have no place to go."

Stock sale starts at 6 p.m. Saturday

The 4-H and FFA livestock auction will begin at 6 p.m. Saturday in the show ring at the fairgrounds.

The annual market sale is sponsored by the Morrow County Livestock Growers Association. Morrow County youth are fortunate to have the support of the livestock growers. The Livestock Growers are fully responsible for the sale, and the delivery of the animals. The First Interstate Bank employees assist as clerks and recorders for the sale.

Buyers may pay for their purchases the night of the sale or mail in their payment after the sale. For the sake of both the youth and the book keepers, a prompt payment is appreciated.

Buyers that can't attend the sale may give a bid to Bill Van Schoick, president of the Livestock Growers or any of the Morrow County Livestock Growers members who plan to help with the sale.

Ext. offers advice for home businesses

Oregon State University Extension Home Economics, in conjunction with the College of Home Economics, is launching a continuing education program for owners and managers of home-based business. Such topics as creating a unique market niche, impact of the business on the family, quality control of the product or service, rules and regulations affecting the business, and changes in quality of life caused by the business will be offered through local workshops and seminars and publications.

The first step in implementing this continuing education program is the development of a comprehensive directory of home-based businesses in Oregon.

If you wish to be included on the mailing list and be informed of such workshops and seminars, please contact Morrow County Extension Service, Box 397, Heppner, phone 676-9642 to register for directory.
