Ione V.B. clips Falcons wings

By Sean Warren

The Ione Cardinal volleyball team travelled to Wheeler Tuesday, October 13 for a well deserved varsity victory.

The Cardinals lost the first game, however, 15-13 despite strong play by junior Angie Rudisill and sophomore Darcee Padberg who each had over ten sets between them.

Sophomore Mary Cupps also added four kills to help the Cardinals in their losing effort.

The second game also was close but the visiting Cardinals squeaked by 16-14 to even the series in the match 1-1.

Senior Rondi Tews and Rudisill combined to score 12 of the Cardinals sixteen points.

The second game was a total team game with everyone playing up to their normal level of play.

The third game proved to be less challenging for the Cardinals who took the game 15-7.

Rudisill came alive in the third game with potent serving that left the Falcons speechless. She scored ten straight points in the game to give the Cardinals the lead.

The Cardinals took the series 2-1.

The Ione J.V. team gave the J.V. Falcons a good run in their games. Led by the strong play of sophomore Judy Jepsen and freshmen Wendy Anderson and Sharra Kinneck.

Jepsen scored four points and an ace in their first game. Unfortunately it wasn't enough. The Falcons took the game 15-7.

With excellent serving by sophomore Mary Cupps, the Cardinals were able to turn the table on the Falcons and take the game 15-7.

Darcee Padberg, who also played in the J.V. game chipped in three spikes to lead the Cardinals in the second game.

The third game was probably the closest the J.V. had been in all year and could have gone either way when it came down to the final three plays.

The J.V. team lost the game on a heartbreaker, 16-14. The Falcons took the J.V. series 2-1.

Statistics

J.V., first game: Falcons 15-7; second game Ione 15-7; third game Falcons 16-14.

Coach touts C-team players

The Heppner C-team volleyball players avenged an earlier league loss to Umatilla last Tuesday on the Vikings home court with a 12-15, 15-2, 15-9 win.

Heppner started out a bit shakey in game one and it was too little, too late as they fell 12-15.

As game two began behind the excellent servers of sophomore Angie Currin and freshmen Tiffany Harris and Jenni Weygandt, the Fillies were in complete control taking an easy 15-2 win.

Melanie Gates and Amy Greenup rose to the occasion in game three with 10-10, 9 points and 6-6, 5 points at the serving stripe to help cature the game and match 15-9.

"We had a strong 85% of serves in play throughout the match. It takes a team effort from back row players to help your server stay at the serving line and the girls have been backing and supporting each other well," says coach Susan Hisler.

Thursday night at Athena, C-Team upped it's league record 3-2 with a win over Weston-McEwen 15-8, 11-15, 15-7.

Playing a much improved Tiger-Scot team, the Filly girls stuck together in games one and two to finally find a combination of six players that were moving and communicating together. "It's not always your best six players that do well, so I like to blend the girls together," Hsisler said.

Sophomore Lana Schmidt had her best serving game of the season wtih 14-15, worth 12 points. Jenni Weygandt much improved, and Melanie Gates chipped in 14-15 and 10-10 respectively for the match.

"In game three, Heppner came out wanting to play volleyball and showed a great desire to play and win. It wasn't necessarily our most skilled players that had their hearts in the game, it was the kids that have been out since August playing in only their fifth match of the entire season. They were the ones that put out that extra effort. Candy Harris has jumped in numerous times with underhand serves and has served 100% this season followed by Tricia Coe. As a team Heppner served 100% in game three.

Freshmen Jeanie Patterson and Rebecca Wickland both hopped into game three with nice tips and spike attempts to help carry the Fillies to a win.

C-Team won't play again until October 27 here at home with Stanfield for their last match of the season.

Heppner traveler enjoys fall foliage journey through eastern Canada

Mary Goheen returned last weekend from a three-week Fall Foliage Tour to Eastern Canada, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New England. She traveled with a group she had gone with several times before.

They flew from Portland to Montreal for a two day stay. Aside from the attractions such as the huge Notre Dame Cathedral, Botanical Gardens, Olympic Stadium and Mt. Royal, the underground shopping center was of interest, Goheen said. It is very extensive and includes not only all kinds of shops, stores, restaurants, post office and even dentists offices.

On way to Quebec where accommodations were in the famous Chateau Frontenac for two days the feeling was of being in France with the background of so much history such as The Citadel, Plains of Abraham-location of famous battles, La[illegible] University and the old Sailors' Church. The very different architecture, French restaurants and language made the travelers feel they were in a foreign land.

North of Quebec, the group stopped to photograph impressive Montmorency Falls and continued on to the Basilica St. Anne de Beaupre which is a world famous shrine comparable to the ones at Lourdes and Fatima.

From Quebec they traveled up along the south shore of the St. Lawrence River passing many little fishing villages (at least three dozen) most with a large stone church in the center. Two days were spent in Perce where a special cruise was enjoyed around the Perce Rock and Bonaventrue Island, the home of thousands and thousands of birds. The weather in Perce was warm and sunshiny and particular rewarding to Mary because twenty years before when she and her husband made this same trip, Perce was completely

On way to Quebec a stop was made to visit the shrine and Basilica of Notre-Dame du Cap dating from 1714. Now there is also a large park, spring (many miracles attributed to thewater) and other facilities. It was very interesting and historical no matter what one's faith might be, she said.

In Quebec where accommodations were in the famous Chateua Fontenac for two days the fogged in and they didn't get even a glimps of the rock or the island.

As the tour proceeded into New Brunswick the colored foliage became even more spectacular.

Two days were spent on Prince Edward Island among other things well known as location of the mythical girl of "Anne of Green Gables" fame, and three days of Nova Scotia, the world's highest tides of Bay of Fundy and original home of the Acadians being of interest there. Both Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia are beautiful and peaceful appearing areas, Goheen said, the weather was wonderful while there.

From Nova Scotia the group proceeded by ferry across the Bay of Fundy back into New Brunswick and down coast through Maine, New Hampshire and into Massachusettes.

Tours of historical places in Boston and two days in Plymouth with its many historical attractions concluded the trip with a pleasant flight back to Portland feeling of all was that it had been a most rewarding trip, Goheen concluded.

Rattlesnakes see body heat

Just call him "four eyes": Rattlesnakes have four sight organs. According to Ranger Rick magazine, two of these organs look and work very much like our eyes. The other two are in front of the regular eyes and are called pit organs. Pit organs are very sensitive to heat. With these "eyes" the snake can "see" the heat rays coming from its prey's body. Even if its regular eyes are blindfolded, the rattlesnake can very easily strike at and kill its prey.
