

Riverside soccer team elated with recent win

By Joyce Hensley

The cheers were loud and long coming from the Riverside High School soccer club's fans recently as the Pirates soundly trounced the Hermiston Junior Varsity soccer club 7-1 on the Hermiston home field. It was the Pirates first victory of the season.

Riverside goalie, Steve Larsen, did his part for the determined club by diverting the Hermiston ball from some near shots to the net.

Guillermo Gonzalez, mid-forward, stayed on his toes and alert, enabling him to turn the Hermiston's ball back toward the Riverside end. "The prettiest goal," said coach

Steve Molthan, "was when Chuy Garcia headed the ball into the net after Monte Axtell made a nice cross shot."

Making parents happy to have provided transportation for the game, Chuck Trueax, sometimes goalie and sometimes half-back, proved team work is the key to a winning combination.

Sharon Barrick, club advisor for the twenty member team, said, "I was delighted to watch them put the fundamentals together and make it work."

"I'm feeling really great about this game, we needed the shot in the arm," said Coach Molthan. "They supported each other well."

The kids bought their own uniforms and shoes for the totally self-supporting soccer club. The club is going into it's third year.

Coach Molthan, the new language arts teacher at Riverside High, having just recently moved to Boardman from Springfield, jumped in as a volunteer in spite of the fact that this is his first experience at coaching soccer. Molthan spends twelve plus hours working with the kids, teaching them to be good winners, and if necessary, good losers.

Barrick, Molthan's right hand, handles all of the scheduling and also has the task of coordinating the team.

Don Jorgensen is Insurance agent in Irrigon

By Joyce Hensley

Don Jorgensen, 37, of Jorgensen Trucking in Irrigon, is starting a new business endeavor—the selling of insurance.

"You'll be able to stop by my office here in Irrigon for property casualty, life, or health insurance needs," said Jorgensen. "We'll also take claims or answer any questions you may have."

Having recently become a licensed insurance agent, after taking tape classes through JoAnne Flink's Eastern Oregon Center for Professional Studies in Hermiston, he is now the commercial, truck and farm agent for Simmons Fisher Agency and will be a branch office for the Hermiston agency in Irrigon.

Even though his forte is commercial insurance, he is trained in personal need analysis. "I can advise you on investments, wills, or insurance," he said.

He'll be working with Kansas City Life, Safeco, Unigard, Valley Pacific, and Viking Insurance companies.

Sounding like the salesman that he is, Jorgensen says, "We have a program that is a super deal, especially for retired folks. You can invest $20,000 in a Single Life Investment Policy and receive a guaranteed 8 1/2% interest rate on your money."

"Depending on the amount invested, you can live on the interest. Besides, your family is taken care of. That's important," he added.

Jorgensen was born in Vancouver, British Columbia in Canada. He and his parents, Ernest and Margaret Jorgensen, and his brother, Bud, moved to Johannesburg in South Africa when he was a 'little tyke', where his dad worked with his Uncle in their switchbreaker company.

Don Jorgensen, 37, Irrigon, is looking forward to doing a good job for his friends and neighbors with their insurance needs. Jorgensen recently received his insurance license and will be an agent for the Simmons Fisher Agency, Hermiston, working out of his office on Highway 730 in Irrigon. He will also be working part-time out of the head office in Hermiston.

They moved to California in 1956 and then to Irrigon in 1962. Ernest and Margaret were naturalized in Pendleton soon after.

The family jumped immediately into trucking, hauling hay to Portland and, sometimes, even doing the 'haying'. "I've been driving trucks ever since I was 15," said Jorgensen. "I've worked along side my dad all my life, except for the two years I spent in Vietnam."

The elder Jorgensen retired in 1972 with Don taking over the bulk of the responsibilities of the trucking corporation they had built. "We have varied in size over the years," said Jorgensen, "from one to ten trucks."

"I know the trucking business. I've been around it all my life, so I think I can do a good job helping the people with their truck and business insurance," said Jorgensen.

Jorgensen and his wife, Dolores (Dee), have three children: Shawn, 18; Erik, 11; and Stephanie, 8.

Caring for Elderly is subject of program in Irrigon

Persons caring for a frail elderly spouse or relative may feel alone and overwhelmed by the responsibility.

"Caregivers need care, too, and there are ways to deal with the stress. That's the focus of a program called 'Coping with Caregiving' set for November 6, 10 a.m. at Irrigon Senior Center," points out Birdine Tullis, Extension Assistant in Morrow County.

"Although a caregiver can't change the condition of a dependent family member, a caregiver can reduce stress and protect his or her health by establishing limits, involving others, asking for and accepting help, and setting realistic expectations," Tullis points out.

The presentation is open to the public without charge. Vicki Schmall, Oregon State University Extension gerontologist who developed the program under a grant from Fred Meyer Charitable Trust, explains that the story told by the slide presentation is designed to help those attending begin to identify ways they can better cope with caregiving. It is aimed at family members because relatives are providing most of the care needed by the frail elderly.

Other programs deal with financial concerns, housing arrangements, and how a family makes decisions when faced with age-related changes in their elderly relatives.

More details about the program are available from the Morrow County Extension office in Heppner, telephone 676-9642.
