Teens lose privilege to drive

More than 700 Oregon teenagers were denied their driving privileges in the first six months of 1989, according to the Motor Vehicles Division. This figure represents a four percent decrease when compared to the first six months of 1988.

Under the law, first offenders are denied driving privileges for one year or until the person becomes 17, whichever is longer. Repeat offenders are suspended or denied for another year or until the person becomes 18, again, whichever is longer.

The 715 denials were based on court convictions or determinations involving alcohol or drug possession, use or abuse. Courts then order DMV to suspend licenses or deny the privilege to apply for a license or permit. Driving privileges may be denied even when the offenses are not related to driving a motor vehicle.

There were 592 denials for possession of alcohol or drugs. This accounted for 83 percent of the total. There were 11 denials for having an open container of alcohol or drinking in a motor vehicle, 95 for intoxication, one for driving under the influence of intoxicants (DUI) and 16 for miscellaneous alcohol and drug offenses such as theft, delivery or manufacturing of a controlled substance.

Males accounted for 565 of the denials or 80 percent.

DMV statistics show that there were 94 second denials, 16 third denials, two fourth denials, one fifth denial, and one sixth denial.
