On Friday, November 3, the Heppner Mustangs wrapped up their season against the Pilot Rock Rockets. The Mustangs scored first on a one-yard run by tailback Russell Britt. Rick Osmin added the extra point, giving the Mustangs an early 7 to 0 lead.

The Mustangs then got tackled in the end zone for a safety, making the score 7-2. Pilot Rock scored again before halftime when Andy Mentzer caught a screen pass and ran 61 yards for the Rockets first touchdown of the night. The Rockets extra point attempt failed, giving the Rockets an 8 to 7 lead at half time.

In the second half the Mustangs scored three unanswered touchdowns. The first one came on a seven-yard run by Britt. Britt added the two point conversion giving the Mustangs a 15 to 8 lead. The next score came when linebacker Rick Osmin intercepted a pass and returned it 27 yards for a touchdown. Osmin added the kick making the score 22 to 8. The third touchdown came when Britt switched from tailback to quarterback and hit Bob Krein on a 32-yard pass. The extra point attempt was blocked, making the final score 28-8.

Coach Tillery said, "It was a fine rewarding season, but it is always disappointing not reaching your goals." The Mustangs ended up third in the CBC with a four and two record.

Construction should begin next week on the Willow Creek Road project. Construction staking is going on at this time along with the beginning of fence construction. The section under construction begins approximately 2 1/2 miles southeasterly of Heppner on Willow Creek Road and connects the pavement at the upper end of Willow Creek Reservoir to the construction completed this Fall.

The contract will be administered by the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) headquartered in Vancouver, WA. The local office for project administration is located in the Bisbee building (behind the Coast to Coast store) on Main Street. Project engineer for construction is Ray McClelland.

The project consists of 4.65 miles grading, base and bituminous paving. Approximately 4,950 feet of 8" and 2,800 feet of 10" waterline will be relocated during construction.

The crushing of base aggregates and aggregate for hot bituminous plant mix has been performed by Morrow County under an agreement with the Federal Highway Administration.

Steelman-Duff, Inc., Clarkston, Washington was awarded the contract in the amount of $1,901,032.20. Subcontractor performing various work items are: Highway Specialty Contractors-Gresham, (waterline, drainage structures, and cattle guards); Acme Concrete Company-Spokane, WA.

(prime coat and paving); Her Construction Company (guard rail); Apply-A-Line, Clackamas, (striping); Grasslands, Inc., Eden, UT (seeding and mulching); JLP Contractors, Inc., North Powder (traffic control); and Power Fence, LaGrande, (fencing); and Hambleton Construction Surveying, Baker.

Two important events coming yet this week are a home-baked food sale Friday beginning at 9 a.m. and the second potluck dinner and games party at 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 12. The food sale features breads, rolls, pies, cakes and cookies. The potluck and party is for everyone to come and enjoy. General chairman is Helen Gilliam, 676-5336.

The quilting group met last Thursday and announces plans to meet each Thursday at 1 p.m. in the dining room. They examined numerous quilted items and chose to start with making quilted ornaments and small gifts. Theta Lowe, 676-9496, is chairman.

This past Monday the Heppner Garden Club met in the dining room to make autumn centerpieces for decorating the Columbia Basin banquet tables this Thursday. These designs, made from Indian Corn, wood ribbon, dried flowers and plant materials, may also be used as door swags or wall hangings. They will adorn the noon dinner tables here in our center this Wednesday. After the Thursday banquet they will be given to the nursing home, daycare center, the schools and other spots around town.

Next week: On Tuesday at 7 p.m. the Class of '55 will meet in the sitting room. On Wednesday the Thanksgiving dinner will be held at noon. Menu: turkey and dressing, mashed potato, gravy, sweet potatoes, fruit salad, broccoli, bread and pumpkin pie.

Wednesday at 7 p.m. the VFW meeting is in the sitting room.

Thursday: The Quilters will meet at 1 p.m. Please bring fabrics for making ornaments.

Remember: the Dollaride Car is available on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Call the office 676-9030 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. or 676-5089 Tuesday and 676-9435 on Thursday.

EASTERN OREGON OUTDOORS

by Mark Bagett

Fall Bass Still Available

It usually takes going hunting in the fall before the realization finally sets in that warm-weather activities are nearly over for the year, a revelation that finds many eastern Oregon sportsmen looking back on all the things they wish they'd done more of while they had the chance.

Take bass fishing, for example, the fastest-growing outdoor sporting activity in the Northwest. More and more anglers are discovering the thrills of this exciting pursuit each spring and summer, yet by the time hunting season rolls around they sadly hang up their bass rods until the next spring, victims of the misconception that bass, being warm-water fish, cannot be caught after the weather turns chilly. The fact is, these anglers are denying themselves some incredible 'bassin' opportunities. Contrary to what they may have heard, bass fishing hardly ends with hunting season.

"In fact, it's quite the opposite; it gets better," says Dub LaShot, a top bass-tournament pro from Springfield, Oregon.

LaShot, who fishes reservoirs throughout the West (including those of eastern Oregon) for recreation and in competition, claims some of the best fishing of the year can be had in the fall, though anglers will need to switch to tactics more suggestive of that season's activities.

"It becomes more of a 'hunting' game in the fall for bass," LaShot said. "You may spend quite a while looking for them without catching anything, but once you find them, you can catch a lot of fish without moving very far. A lot of times you'll find them pretty bunched up this time of year, particularly on your reservoirs where the water is drawn down."

LaShot said he starts looking for fall bass on main feeder-creek points, then slowly works his way back into the coves until he finds the fish. Usually, he says, they will be holding near structure or sharp bends in the submerged creek channels in water from 10 to 25 feet deep or deeper.

"Even though there will be short periods during the warmer parts of the day when the fish will come shallow, I still do better on those concentrated fish in the deeper water," he said.

When he finds fish in the top 10 or 15 feet of water, LaShot uses wide-wobbling crankbaits, such as Rapala Shad Rap or a Poe's, and retrieves them slowly near the bottom. Since he feels crawfish are the bass' primary forage during this time, LaShot suggests plugs in brown or brown and red and says those which also feature a splash of chartreuse tend to work even better.

In deeper water, LaShot opts for his favorite lure of all, a jig-and-pig (a rubber-skirted, 3/4 or 3/8 ounce leadhead jig tipped with a pork rind trailer), and gently hops or crawls it down the creek-channel slopes.

"And another thing," the successful pro tipped, "a lot of guys overlook it, but believe it or not, if you start having some of those nice, warm days after some pretty hard weather, sometimes you can put on a buzzbait and catch a big fish. Even if the water temperatures have cooled off and the fish have become a little more lethargic, if you get three or four days of semi-good weather and warmer temperatures than what they have been, those fish will still bust a buzzbait, and hard. And they won't be small fish; these are big ones."

It's only natural for sportsmen's thoughts to turn to hunting in the fall, but for those who also enjoy bass fishing, a rewarding opportunity awaits in the fall between shots.

"It is a good time of the year," LaShot said. "It's not like in the spring; you can't just run down the bank and pick them off, but in the fall, more than any other time, if you find one fish you'll find several. Sometimes it can be just fantastic."
