Wranglers gearing up for playdays

The Wranglers riding club held a meeting March 5 at Kate's.

March 16 members will have a bake sale at the Heppner Post Office to help pay for awards to be given out at the last planned playday April 29.

Wranglers will have a clean up of the riding grounds during spring vacation.

The cleanup date will be announced later.

The Playdays have been planned for Sundays, April 1, 8, 22 and 29. Wranglers welcome anyone interested in riding or being around horses to join them. For more information call Susan Hisler at 676-5878 or Judy Barber at 676-5037.

The Adventures of Grazelda & Clem

(After Hours)
5:00 a.m. - 11:00 p.m.

Grazelda gushed, "Isn't this weather great Clem? It just makes me want to go down to Miller's Mini Mart & Chevron and get a bunch of cleaning supplies so we can get started on this spring cleaning."

Clem added, "Oh, I know that exact cleaning feeling luv, but it's such a nice day the guys are forcing me to go golfing."

Grazelda shot back, "Oh my poor baby. Don't let them twist your arm too much."

Jepsens attend pest conference

John and Jean Jepsen of Jepsen Pest Control, Inc., recently attended the Pacific Northwest Pest Management Conference in Beaverton. The three-day seminar included speaker George Okomurah of Okomurah Biological Institute in Sacramento, CA. His one-day class was about grain stored insect identification and proper methods of treating them. Pheromones are one of the new methods used for helping locate and identify insects in food processing plants and warehouses.

Jerry Beachall of Terminex, Inc. was a featured speaker on spills and proper containment of spills. Paulette Pyle of Oregonians for Food and Shelter spoke on public awareness and the proper and safe use of pesticides. A topic of concern for her was that environmentalist organizations, April 12, will be targeting the paper milk cartons used in our schools each day. A minute amount of by-product called Dioxin is found in the paper used in milk cartons. The paper cartons are coated with a thick layer of protective wax, and have passed standards set by the Environmental Protection Agency and the Food and Drug Administration.

Senator Mark Hatfield says there are 27 bills concerning food safety in Congress this year. "Please invest your time to write letters of support or call our state senators and representatives. They are elected officials and they can't do what we want them to do if they don't hear from us," says Jean Jepsen.

"Pesticides are big business--as a farming community, who knows and understands this better than all of us who must use them to produce insect free food. The general public is encouraged to continue the contact our state senators and representatives to support the proper and safe use of pesticides," she said.

Leslie Drummer, an insurance claims supervisor of Washington DC spoke on "risk retention" dealing with chemical liability insurance.

Many chemical sales representatives spoke and demonstrated new products throughout the three-day seminar.
