Lion Don Potter presents workbooks to elementary principal Mick Tolar

By Beth Stephens
Special guest speaker at the Ir-rigon Lions Club Feb. 28 meeting was Don Potter, district 36 director of the Positive Youth Development (Quest) Program. Potter presented a video and slides explaining K-5 "Skills for Growing" and grade 6-8 "Skills for Adolescence" to help parents, teachers and administrators to build communities that care about their young people. Life skills are taught to elementary and junior high middle school students to help each individual reach his full potential. Ir-rigon Lions presented 180 free Quest Program student workbooks to the north Morrow County schools and a video tape to each of the north Morrow County schools and to the Stanfield School District.

New member Charlie Thompson was welcomed into the Lions Club.

Ione Topic Club meets

Ione Women's Topic Club met Feb. 28 at the home of Jeri McElligott with Keri Rietmann assisting.

A report was made on the United Way Fund Drive in Morrow County. These funds are used for emergencies and all that is collected is used in Morrow County. They are under the supervision of a local board.

Books shared by Jeri and Keri were "The Good Times" by Russell Baker, a journalist for The Times; "Among School Children" by Tracy Kidder which is an observation of a 5th grade class for a year; and "A World of Ideas" which is a recording of a program on the Bill Moyer Journal TV Show talking about the many innovative ideas available.

Plans for entertaining the Heppner Bookworms Club on March 28 were discussed.

IMS ends basketball season

By Heidi Orem

Ione Middle School played the Condon Blue Devils on January 25 at Ione. Both the boys and girls beat the Devils.

The boys beat the Devils, 36-31. Jason Proudfoot and Aaron Heideman were the lead scorers with 14 points each.

The girls beat the Devils 32-21. April Taylor was the lead scorer for this game with 14 points.

The IMS teams then played the Helix Grizzlies on February 1 at Ione. The boys beat the Grizzlies 55-44 and the girls beat them 28-18. April Taylor was again the lead scorer of that game with 14 points.

On February 3 both teams traveled to a basketball tournament in Helix. The girls came home with first place and the boys with third.

The girls beat Pleasant View, 36-16, to make it to the championship game where they played the Grizzlies. The Grizzlies were out for revenge and Ione had to fight all the way to the last 15 seconds when the Grizzlies made a basket and brought the score to 20-21. Ione held out though and beat the Grizzlies 21-20 for first place. The Cardinals were first; Grizzlies, second; Echo Cougars third and Pleasant View, fourth.

The IMS boys lost to Athena-Weston in the absence of their coach, Dean Robinson, who was fighting the Heppner fire. Frank Halvorsen and Betty Mathews coached the Ione boys, who battled Helix for third place and won. Athena-Weston finished first; Echo-second; Ione-third and Helix-fourth.

The last game of the season for the Ione Cardinals was against the Echo Cougars on February 8. The boys lost their game to the Cougars 30-36. Aaron Heideman was the top scorer with 16 points.

The girls beat the Echo Cougars, 28-16. Jaime Lovett was top scorer for the Cardinals with eight points.

The Ione boys end their 89-90 basketball season 7-5. The Ione girls end their season 8-4.

Air Life to visit St. Patrick's Day

The Air Life of Oregon helicopter is scheduled to visit the Heppner St. Patrick's Day celebration on Saturday, March 17, between 12 noon and 1 p.m. The helicopter will land and be on display in the Les Schwab parking lot.

An Air Life pilot and flight nurse will be available during this time to conduct tours of the helicopter and answer questions the public may have about Air Life service to Heppner, as well as the availability of the Air Life Membership Plan in the Morrow County area.

Pioneer Memorial Hospital in Heppner became an Air Life affiliate hospital in October 1989.

Air Life of Oregon will be "in service" on March 17. Therefore, should the service be needed, the Heppner visit may have to be cancelled or interrupted.

Air Life of Oregon began service to Central and Eastern Oregon in August of 1985. Since that time Air Life has flown over 1100 patients; about half of the patients are transported between hospitals; with the other half being helicopter response to accident scenes.

Air Life provides air ambulance transport service with both helicopter and airplane. Both aircraft are dedicated to aeromedical use and are licensed as advanced life support air ambulances. Airline transport certified pilots and registered nurses with advanced training in trauma, heart and perinatal care (for mothers and babies) are available 24 hours every day.

The Air Life membership plan, available to residents and visitors to Air Life's service area, costs $40 per year for individuals or all members of an immediate family.

Vern Bartley, program manager of Air Life, said the membership plan offers several benefits. "When an Air Life member becomes an Air Life patient due to a critical illness or injury, Air Life bills their insurance company for payment and accepts that payment as payment in full. The member's deductible is paid in full by their Air Life membership."

There are now over 7000 Air Life members. Their investment in Air Life has made it possible for us to "balance our budget," according to Bartley, "as well as make service improvements such as the Bell 222 UT helicopter which was brought on line in December 1989. This new helicopter can accommodate two patients and three medical caregivers, and, because of its twin-engine capability can reach the distant service area of Central and Eastern Oregon more quickly."

Individuals or businesses with questions about Air Life service or membership can call 1-800-522-2828 during business hours.

Lindsay gets $6,500 from Elks

Dan Lindsay, Heppner High School senior, has received a total of $6,500 as a result of his participation in the Elks Most Valuable Student Program.

The money, from local, district and state competition, will be sent directly to Lindsay's college to help with tuition. Lindsay says he plans on attending the University of Portland.
