

Extension Homemakers raffle quilt

Before, during and after the Fair and Rodeo Parade, the Morrow County Extension Homemakers will be selling cold lemonade and homemade cookies from a table in front of Murray's Drug Store.

They will also display a photograph of a fundraising quilt project, assembled by Oregon Extension Homemaker Councils. Tickets for the quilt drawing will be available at the lemonade stand. The drawing will be in Albany; the winner need not be present to win.

"Every Oregon county with an Extension Homemaker Study Group program received a plain white quilt square," said Carol Bennett, advisor to the Morrow County program. Each county designed and applied their square to highlight county products, geographic features or history. The completed blocks were assembled and quilted. "The finished quilt is a lovely pictorial collage of 34 Oregon counties," Bennett continues. When council members gathered suggestions for the block, they recognized the wealth of natural resources to be found in Morrow County.

The Morrow County block was designed and embroidered by Isabelle Jones of Irrigon. Isabelle incorporated cattle, wheat, wine grapes, melons, potatoes, the Columbia River, Oregon Trail, and pine trees into an outline of Morrow County.

Representatives of the Pine City, Rhea Creek, Ione and North Morrow Study Groups will prepare refreshments and staff the table from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Saturday, August 18.

When meeting friends and neighbors for parade viewing, enjoy cool lemonade and homemade cookies. Proceeds from the refreshments and the quilt ticket sales will assist local study group members to participate in the 1991 National Extension conference in Portland.

Three-time world rodeo champ to compete at PRCA rodeo

New rodeo arena at fairgrounds

Some of the world's best, including three-time world steer wrestling champ, John W. Jones, will be competing in the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association rodeo at the Morrow County Rodeo this weekend.

Jones, of Morro Bay, Ca., won the world steer wrestling championship in 1984, 1988 and 1989. Rodeo Committee member John Kilkenny says "we're pretty lucky to have him come in when he's pretty selective about the rodeos he goes to." Kilkenny says that Jones competes in only around 50 rodeos a year, compared to the 100 to 120 rodeos other cowboys average.

Class of 2000 to participate in parade

The Class of 2000 is again planning to participate in the Morrow County Fair Parade on August 18. They will be wearing their yellow T-shirts, declaring that they are the smoke free class of 2000.

Instead of walking this year, they will be riding their bikes along the parade route. The future third graders should meet at Green Feed Store between 9 and 9:30 a.m. An ice cream treat will be provided after the parade.

For more information contact Marianne Kahl, 676-9113 or 676-5422.

Kinzua concentrates on maintenance

Frank Pearson

After several years of expansion, including a new stud mill, cogeneration plant and log chipper, Kinzua Corp. has been concentrating on maintenance at the mill, General Manager Frank Pearson told the Heppner Chamber of Commerce last week.

Speaking at the weekly chamber luncheon, Pearson said the company will spend about $600,000 on improvements to the mill this year, an amount he said would have been higher had the lumber market not experienced a recent slump.

The company added two new edgers last year at a cost of $700,000. "They are more efficient and will give us a better product," Pearson said.

He said both the domestic and export lumber market has been down recently but expects the price to come back by the end of the year.

Kinzua has purchased nine out of the last 10 sales bid on in the past 18 months, and the only one lost was 25 miles from town on Coalmine.

Pearson said some west side sawmills have been to Eastern Oregon to bid on timber sales.

He said Kinzua is looking at several diversification projects but so far nothing is concrete.

4-Corners snowmobile club clears Bald Mountain trail

The 4-Corner's Snowmobile Club helped in clearing and enhancing a portion of the Bald Mountain Trail on Aug. 5. Fourteen members met at Cutsforth Park at 8 a.m. Sunday to saw out downed timber and grub portions of the trail that needed improvement.

It was a hot day for this grueling work, which included felling and bucking trees, and leveling portions of the trail to maintain a good tread. Work wasn't completed till around 3:30 in the afternoon. In all, about two miles of trail was completed.

The group split into three crews, one of which began at the park and worked up Willow Creek, another that worked from the middle portion toward the park, and the third which worked from the top of Coal Mine Hill to the middle section. Other pieces of the trail, on the east side of Willow Creek, were cleared and grubbed by this year's Youth Conservation Corp crews, lead by Allen Burkenbine and Eddie Gunderson.

The Bald Mountain Trail is a new trail being constructed this year by the U.S. Forest Service and is for foot and horse traffic. This loop trail can be reached from Cutsforth Park, or from the top of Coal Mine Hill, just Northwest of Herren Meadow, where a parking area is scheduled to be constructed this fall. In winter, the portion from the park to the parking area will be open for snowmobile use. This is to allow access to other areas of the district for this winter activity. From the parking area, the Bald Mountain Trail uses old logging roads to access Gibson Cave, then on to the top of Little Bald Mountain. From here the trail heads to the saddle between Big and Little Bald Mountains, and the northwest back to the park. Signs need to be installed at the trailhead and at junctions with other roads and trails; also, more trail maintenance is needed on portions. There are some ups and downs on the trail, so be sure you have some water along and are wearing proper footwear.

Published: August 15, 22 and 29, 1990

Also competing this weekend in Heppner are Mike Beers of Rufus and Dee Picket, past team roping world champs; Charmayne James Rodman, perennial world champion barrel racer; Joe Beaver, past world champ calf roper; Charlie Sampson and Wacey Cathey, past bull riding champs; well-known bull rider Bobby Delvecchio; David Bothem, Hermiton saddle bronc rider; Butch Knowles 1988 NFR saddle bronc champ; bull rider July Williams; bareback rider Clint Cory; Mel Colman, saddle bronc rider; and world champion steer wrestlers Larry Ferguson and Marty Melvin.

Kilkenny said the total purse was right at $20,000 with 238 contestants.

"What draws the cowboys is the $1,000 purse the sponsors added," said Kilkenny.

The Morrow County Pro Rodeo will be held Saturday and Sunday starting at 1:15. The local Morrow County Rodeo is Friday beginning at 7 p.m. "Come see the world's best," added Kilkenny.
