

Lexington News

By Delpha Jones

--A program on the history and scenery of New Zealand and Australia given by Cliff and Cindy Green was greatly enjoyed at the Lexington Grange meeting held at the Grange hall in Lexington. The program was narrated by Cliff who did a fine job, telling of the crops and livestock grown there, the government, and many other points of interest. The meeting was opened by the master Joe Yocom. Three visitors from Willows Grange were present for the meeting. Money makers were discussed and reports were heard from the ag and legislative chairman. The next meeting will be Monday, March 18, with the program by the county judge Louis Carlson.

--Richard Wihlon of Burbank, Washington, was a recent visitor with friends and relatives in Lexington and Heppner.

--Pat Wright has returned home after a visit with her sister and husband Jack and Audrey Mounts. She helped her sister celebrate her birthday.

--Faye Ruhl recently received word of the birth of a great grandson, born to Scott and Dana Eperly of Roseburg. The young man has been named Britt Allan. Grandfather is Dick Ruhl of Roseburg and great-grandparents are Marie and Clint McQuarrie of Roseburg.

--Joshua Ross, Coos Bay, is visiting this week with his grandmother, Faye Ruhl, and aunt, Florence Grey.

--Holly Rebekah Lodge met for the regular meeting on Thursday evening with the NG in the chair. Plans were discussed for a booth at the St. Patrick's celebration in Heppner. The booth will feature fancy work and cookbooks. The Odd-fellow Lodge met at the same time and discussed the roofing of the hall and other business. The next meeting will be March 7.

--The card party held at the Rebekah Hall on Saturday night was well attended with Kathy Tellechea and Annetta Padberg as hostesses. Winning prizes were men's high-Lee Palmer and second high-Kenneth Smouse; women's high-Delpha Jones and second high-Joyce Buchanan; traveling-Millie Evans and Irene Crabtree and door prize-Leila Palmer. The next card party will be April 6.

--Cecil and Delpha Jones were recent visitors at Redmond where they attended L/M committee and district deputy school for the grange. The meeting was held at the Terrebonne Grange Hall with approximately 70 people present. The meeting was presided over by the state master of the Grange, Wayne Johnson. The house bill 404, which would take away tax exemptions for fraternal organizations is a very important issue at the present, and members were told to be writing the legislators concerning this. This can affect many small organizations, to

District GWA conference held

By Delpha Jones

The District G.W.A. conference was held at the Lexington Grange Hall on Monday Feb. 25, with hostesses Joyce Buchanan and Virginia Peck in Charge. There were 26 ladies in attendance. Honored guests were Doris Ried, state GWA chairman and Verla Larson, District 4 GWA chairman. The ladies gave instructions on the various projects of the grange, and the contests available. Some of the contests available are: cookies and candy, judged at the State Grange. Each person can have one entry in each class of cookies; sweat shirts; men and women's handcrafts; baby quilts; toys and many others. Information is available by contacting any Grange member. The grangers urge the juniors to take part in these contests. Other things supported are the Ronald McDonald House. Items needed there are writing materials, stamps, sample supplies such as toothpaste, hand lotion, laundry supplies, coffee and other food stuff such as canned fruits, etc.

April 24 is Grange Day at the Legislature and they would like a good crowd. Present were members from Greenfield, Willows, Lexington and Columbia Granges and the chairman and her husband.

Following the meeting the Joneses drove through Burns and Ontario where they visited the Lovelace family, and Baker where they visited Vic and Scott Groshens and other relatives before returning home.
