

Ione Elementary focuses on student writing, illustration

David and Helen Haidle with the Ione Elementary students

By Anne Morter

The Ione Elementary School hosted a special day emphasizing student writing and illustrating Thursday, March 7, featuring David and Helen Haidle of Beaverton.

Helen writes children's books and David does the illustrating chores and together with their children, Elizabeth and Paul, award winning authors themselves, the family travels the country giving "Young Authors" presentations. The children were unable to attend due to previous commitments.

The Haidles' visit kicked off the Ione Elementary School spring emphasis on literature, where the students study literature of all kinds and do concentrated classroom work on student writing and illustrating. The will cap their work with an open house on April 30.

The Haidles shared their enthusiasm about writing at the Heppner Middle School on Wednesday and then spent all day Thursday with the entire student body of the Ione schools. According to organizers, Betty Carlson and Betty Rietmann, the Haidles were well received by students of all ages and did a good job in building interest in student writing and illustrating. After school in Ione, they conducted an additional session for teachers.

The Haidles are a very gifted family. Two of their children, Elizabeth and Paul, are award-winning student authors. Elizabeth's book, "Elmer the Grump," was the winner of the 1988 National Written and Illustrated by... Awards Contest, an award she won at age 13. Paul, inspired by his sister, won a $2000 second place award in the same contest in 1989 when he was 12 years old. Their oldest son is a fine musician.

During the 1989-90 school year, the family traveled to more than 35 schools, where they provided inspiration for students to write and illustrate. Helen and Elizabeth have travelled extensively to promote the book. In the last year, they have spoken to the New York State Reading Association in New York City, the National Librarians Convention in Salt Lake City, the Oregon Media Convention in Seaside and the California State Reading Association in Los Angeles.

Rhea Creek group meets

By Delpha Jones

A good crowd attended the Rhea Creek Study Group meeting at the home of Ruth McCabe on Wednesday, March 6.

The program given by Mrs. McCabe was on wheats and grains, which were displayed in small plastic bags. Several breads made by the hostess using different flowers were enjoyed. Plans were discussed for the district meeting to be held at St. Pat's center in Heppner, where Lois Georing, district program leader will be the speaker. A luncheon of salads will be served. It is hoped that the group will have the allotted number of tote bags ready by the April meeting. There will be a sewing day at Mary Wright's on March 13 to work on the tote bags. The next lesson will be on blouses and will be April 3 at the home of Judy Stevens with Norma Craber and Mary Wright demonstrating.

Heroic actions of service men and women aren't always during a time of war. Todd Lindsay, Lexington, who is serving as an aviation antisubmarine warfare operator third class with the United States Navy was recently honored with the Navy Commendation Medal for his heroic actions in an emergency situation in November 1989.

Petty Officer Lindsay had encountered an overturned vehicle along an interstate highway in California. He took charge of the situation by directing traffic and administering first-aid to two severely injured passengers.

Another serviceman who arrived at the scene also stopped to offer assistance but he was struck by a hit and run driver and was severely injured. Lindsay performed emergency medical treatment in spite of danger to his personal safety and was instrumental in saving the victim's life, according to the witnesses.

Lindsay is the son of Ken and Bunnie Lindsay, Lexington. His wife Missy is the daughter of Ken and Jean Ann Turner, Heppner.

Heppner Day Care will be selling raffle tickets for their second annual fat lamb raffle. The lamb was donated by Wade West. The winner will have the choice of taking the lamb alive or the Day Care will pay for cutting and wrapping. Tickets are $1 each or six for $5 and are available at the Day Care, Sears, or from any board member or employee of the Day Care. Day Care will also have a booth in front of Murray's on Saturday, March 16.

Proceeds from the raffle will be used to purchase new outside toys and equipment for the Day Care.

TNT channel to be out temporarily

Heppner TV Inc. reports that Channel 15, TNT, will not be transmitted for a short time. According to Judie Laughlin of Heppner TV, the equipment that went out during the power outage March 9 must be repaired. She said that the return time on the repairs is not confirmed so the company cannot say how long they will be without the channel. When TNT returns the channel will be relocated to channel 14.

Laughlin said that this also is the season for sun-caused outages, some of which have been experienced already, with some channels fuzzing out for approximately eight to 10 minutes at a time. Certain satellites are blocked by the sun's rays, which causes outages, she said.

Grazelda chirped, "Oh Clem, aren't you excited? It's almost St. Patrick's Day! Clem joined in, "Boy I sure am Grazelda and I'm gonna be standing right in front of Miller's Mini Mart & Chevron when that parade comes by." Grazelda sighed, "And I'll be right beside you Clem." Clem scolded, "Well okay Grazelda but you have to promise to give me any candy you catch and help me trip the little kids." Grazelda groaned, "This man is a complete lost cause!"
