Public lands grazing topic of TV program to be aired

The World of Audubon television special entitled "The New Range Wars," a program on the public lands grazing issue, will be aired on June 23 at 10 p.m. (ET) on TBS Super Station Atlanta. The program purported to examine public lands grazing from both the rancher's and conservationist's viewpoint, is not a "balanced presentation of facts" according to an editorial by Ellen Godwin, editor of the "Brangus Journal." The editorial also appeared in the Western Livestock Journal.

Tell your opinion on local health care at public meetings

Residents of Morrow County are being asked to provide input on local health care needs, issues and concerns. Two community-wide goal setting meetings will provide the structure for the input. The first will be held in Boardman at the Riverside High School cafeteria on June 20 and the second will be held in Heppner at the fairgrounds pavilion building on June 27. Both meetings begin at 7 p.m. Members of the Morrow County Health Care Council will facilitate small group discussions and the goal of these meetings will be to identify five major health care priorities for Morrow County. Everyone is welcome to attend. For more information call Sagely at 676-9122 or stop by her office at Columbia Basin Electric.

After 19 years at Kinzua, Seth Forquer, 62, has retired. Forquer, born in North Dakota, came out West in 1930. He started out at the mill operating the lathe in the plywood plant. During his employment he has worked in the "bull gang" doing clean-up in the yard, taken care of oiling in the sawmill and finally, handled knife-changing in the mill. Not too optimistic about the future of the timber industry, Forquer says, "I've seen the better of the lumber industry. The hassle's going to be now. I've got to go fishing before they mess that up too." Besides fishing Forquer says he plans to spend some time taking care of three acres he and his wife, VoJean, bought at St. Paul. St. Paul is around seven miles from Newburg. The Forquers have two grown daughters Cindy Schmidt and Jeanine Pettyjohn, both Heppner, William Jones, Portland, Doug Jones, Reedsport and seven grandchildren.
