Dick Graham puts in 39 years

Paul Sumner and Dick Graham

After a career with Kinzua Corp. which has spanned 39 years, Dick Graham, a second generation Kinzua worker, has retired.

"Graham has seen both ends of the operation," in the town of Kinzua and in Heppner, said personnel director Paul Sumner.

Graham, who was born and raised at Kinzua, began working in the woods at the mill there in 1953. He began running property lines and marking timber.

In 1978 when the mill at Kinzua closed he moved to Heppner. He ended his career buying logs and timber and purchasing land.

Graham says that he has seen a lot of changes in the log scaling equipment and in the mills, "some to the better and some not."

Graham and his wife, Rosie, have two daughters, Mary Dunning, Heppner and Helen Ekstrom, Ione, and three grandchildren.

While he says he has no special plans for retirement, he said he is "looking forward" to it. "It will be a change," he added.

regional conference and entire denomination. The Rev. Don Severson of Portland, the Central Pacific Conference minister will preside over the formal order of installation; the Rev. Trish Knorpp of Condon UCC will give the charge to the congregation; and Don Bristow, moderator of Ione UCC will give the charge to the minister.
