Newlyweds honored at barbecue

By Delpha Jones
 A get-together honoring newlyweds Linda and Paul Bouscaren, was held recently at the home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Dallas and Zelma McDaniel on Rhea Creek. The bride, the former Linda Cooper, and Paul Bouscaren were married July 18 at Kansas City, Mo. at a 4 p.m. wedding held at the Full Faith Church of Love. A reception followed. The groom's parents are Donna and Pierre Bouscaren. The bride wore a white satin gown and carried pink roses tied with a white satin ribbon.

Around 60 people were present for a beef barbecue and potluck dinner with a brother Roger Schoonover in charge of the barbecue. Other guests included Roger's wife Darlene and family a brother, Raymond Schoonover from Oregon City; David Cooper from McMinnville; Mr. and Mrs. Dale Cooper and family, Pendleton; a sister and husband Diana and Ira Lee Edgerton of Newbern, N.C.; Joe and Betty Way, The Dalles; Asa and Beulah Way, Salathe, Kelsey and Diana; L.D. Vinson and wife, Doris; Sue and Darrel Vinson; Maxine Jensen and daughter Christine; Mickey and daughter from Waitsburg, WA.; Charles Davidson, Ione; and Alvin Vinson from southern California who was visiting other relatives and friends. The young couple will make their home in Encinita, Ca. where he is a computer programming specialist.

Arizona couple enjoys roots tour

Bob and Anne Aberg

Bob and Anne Aberg of Sedona, Arizona, spent the weekend in Heppner on a "roots" tour learning about Anne's mother, Margaret Barratt Heltzel.

Anne, 55, is a native of Salem, where her dad and mother were avid golfers. Her dad, John Heltzel, was an attorney and one of the founders of the Illahe Hills Golf and Country Club.

Bob, 61, is a graduate of Purdue University and retired to the "Red Rock" country of Sedona two years ago. He had an administrative position with the U.S. Navy in research and development and was a key man in the field of radar and electronic warfare.

Anne graduated from the University of Oregon and met Bob on a blind date while visiting her uncle Chuck Heltzel, a former public utilities commissioner for Oregon, in Washington, D.C.

Anne's mother, the late Margaret Barratt Heltzel, was born in Heppner in 1909 to William B. and Eliza Barratt. She was the younger sister to Garnet Barratt, former Heppner rancher and county judge. She moved to Portland with her father and mother in 1926 and graduated from Grant High School and from the University of Oregon in 1930. While in Heppner, the Abergs said they were thrilled with the Morrow County Museum. "It gives us a valuable insight how our ancestors (the Barratts) lived in those early days," says Bob Aberg. Both were impressed by the scope of materials presented, especially on the Heppner flood.

With Floyd Jones of Heppner and her cousin Jim Barratt of Corvallis as guides, the Abergs drove 12 miles out of town to visit the former Sand Hollow Ranch where the Barratts lived. The William Barratt family narrowly escaped the Heppner flood as they had moved back to Sand Hollow to put up the hay. Their Heppner home that was destroyed by the flood stood at the location of the current Sweeney Mortuary. The Barratts rebuilt on the same site and Margaret Barratt lived at that location.

Anne Aberg has received a lot of background material from correspondence with Ruth McCabe of the Morrow County Historical Society, of which she is a member.

As a local sidelight, the Abergs are Episcopalians in Sedona and their rector is Father Kerrie Newhardt, who lived in Montana with Bishop Jackson Gilliam, a native of Heppner.

Anne would like anyone who remembers her mother to share with her by mail at her home address: 25 Sitgreaves Ct., Sedona, AZ.

Garden clubs plan floral show

Garden clubs from Heppner, Ione and Lexington and their friends are planning a "Hats Off to Morrow County Gardeners" for the fair floral show this year.

The staging committee is at work with decorations for the outdoor show, including garden-patio scenes, 100 planters and a lot of hats.

A new special exhibit division will feature a show from the Rawlins Dahlia Gardens by Bill and Tom Rawlins, local dahlia growers.

Open class exhibitors are urged to read the schedule in the premium book and bring as many entries as possible. Helpful hints are also in the premium book.

Entries will be received from 1 to 8 p.m. August 18 and 8 to 10 a.m. Wednesday, Aug. 19.

Show committee chairmen include: Birdine Tullis and Pat Pettyjohn, staging; Jean Nelson, entries and classification; Donna Bergstrom, placement and clerk; Jane Rawlins, judge; Delta Huber hospitality. Rawlins is general chairman. For more information call 676-9435.

Look out for phone scam

Be on the lookout for bogus phone sales claiming to benefit the Pioneer Memorial Hospital, Administrator Kevin Erich warns.

"People are calling Home Health individuals selling window cleaning, and saying the sales benefit the hospital. They do not," Erich said last week.
