

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Hughes, chamber manager

Seasons...it would be so dull not to have them. Spring used to be my favorite time of the year with all its new beginnings. Now I think it's fall, maybe because I know it won't last much longer and each sunset and crisp fall day is to be treasured for the moment. (I hope this has no special significance like being in the "autumn of my years").

Les Payne attends college football team reunion

Garth Davis of the Small Business Development Center shared small business resources and opportunities for specialty businesses with the Chamber. The three main problems of small business: 1) government regulations (26 agencies just for service stations); 2) lack of capital; and 3) lack of well-trained work force and attitude of work force. The SBDC can help improve business, solve business problems, offer training, give one-on-one assistance, etc. For more information, come by the Chamber office for a brochure. Most of the services and counseling offered is free and they're there to help our small businesses thrive.

Along those lines, Chamber is excited about sponsoring the first ever "Business After Hours". Cindy Schmidt of the Country Rose will be hosting this small business event at her business Tuesday, Oct. 27 from 6 to 7 p.m. A door prize and refreshments will be provided by the Country Rose. This is a great opportunity to visit informally with other small business people and view what their store has to offer.

"Hats off" to chamber member John Edmundson who gave up time on the golf course this weekend to varnish all the "Welcome to Heppner" signs. Thanks John.

Thought for the week: "The greatest undeveloped territory in the world lies under your hat."

Oregonians Against Measures 5 & 6

Linda Shelk
Chair, Crook County Children & Youth Services Commission
Endorser, Women's Foundation (Foundation for low-income and minority women)

"My work is with community groups, helping people. Measures 5 and 6 would mean higher electric bills...they would be very costly, and that's going to hurt the people I care about. We can't afford Measures 5 and 6."

Stop the Immediate Shutdown Vote NO on 5 & 6

Immediate shutdown of Trojan... power shortages.

The immediate shutdown of Trojan, called for in Measures 5 and 6, would leave no time to develop new replacement power sources...power shortages in Oregon could result.

Immediate shutdown will cut off nearly 20% of Oregon's electricity supply.

Measures 5 and 6 would completely cut off all electricity produced by Trojan shortly after the November election. With the region's electricity supplies already tight, we can't afford the immediate loss of Oregon's single largest power plant.

One-half billion dollars in higher electric bills.

Studies estimate that the immediate shutdown of Trojan, as called for in Measures 5 and 6, would cost Oregon ratepayers about one-half billion dollars more than the plan for an orderly 4-year phaseout of Trojan.

1,000 workers at Trojan would lose jobs immediately.

Measures 5 and 6 would immediately force nearly 1,000 men and women at Trojan out of work. The existing 4-year phaseout plan would allow time for Trojan workers to be retrained and find new jobs.
