

St. Pat's auction committee still needs items for auction

Ann Spicer with auction items

St. Pat's auction chairperson Ann Spicer shows off some of the items to be auctioned on Saturday, March 13 beginning at 2 p.m. across for the Morrow County Museum.

So far the auction list includes Jimmy Farley's pot of beans; Pendleton car robes, donated by First Interstate Bank; dinner for two at the Pendleton Airport; a $20 gift certificate from Cimmityoti's restaurant in Pendleton; season passes to football and basketball games; hand painted saw by Cheri Lovgren; two pounds of Laurie Mark's homemade fudge; school desks; antique bottles and a broom holder from early Heppner businesses donated by Bob Jepsen; a Trivial pursuit game donated by Murray's Drug; and two back packs donated by Jim and Cork Norene.

The committee is still seeking items for the auction, especially gift certificates, furniture, homemade or handcrafted items, antiques and baked goods. For pickup call Bob Kahl, 676-5422 evenings or 676-9113 days or Rollie Marshall 676-5453 evenings.

First Interstate funds heart healthy kits for Heppner, Ione schools

Heppner and Ione elementary school children will be among students in 50 classrooms throughout the state who will have the chance to learn healthy habits, thanks to a grant from the First Interstate Bank of Oregon Charitable Foundation to the American Heart Association, Oregon Affiliate.

The $1,500 donation will purchase 50 American Heart Association schoolsite kits for use in grade 4 through 6. The kits will be distributed to several Oregon schools who do not currently have the materials.

According to foundation administrator Harleen Katke, "First Interstate Bank recognizes that the youth of our state are our most important asset. We are excited about our partnership with the American Heart Association in making its schoolsite program available in many of the Oregon communities we serve."

The kit, "Getting To Know your Heart, Upper Elementary," provides curriculum materials on physiology, smoking, nutrition and exercise as well as assertiveness skills for children as they enter the most temptation-prone years.

American Heart Association volunteers will provide inservice training for teachers in how to use the kit. The AHA's schoolsite program features grade-specific materials for preschool through high school, all geared toward early prevention of heart disease.

Dried flowers Garden Club topic

"Don't be Afraid to Try Dried Flower Arrangements" was the topic presented at the Ione Garden Club meeting Feb. 10. Delta Huber gave the program at the home of Lea Mathieu with Birdine Tullis assisting. Delta told the members that all the dried materials she used were gathered along the streams and road in this area. Dried flower arrangements are very suitable for some one who does not wish to care for live flowers. They will also suitable for someone who does not wish to care for live flowers. They will also last as long as needed. She suggested that spraying the materials with hair spray would prevent shattering and to keep the color bright. One thing she cautioned about was to be careful about spreading weed seeds.

The spring sale date was tentatively set for April 27 at the Ione Legion Hall.

The group also agreed to help with the Cycle VI in September.

Jane Rawlins speaks to Garden Club

The Heppner Garden meeting featured a short talk by Jane Rawlins. She spoke on the many implements for use in putting flower arrangements together. Pin holders and how to secure them with sticky tape and fish line were topics.

A video was shown on growing roses from start to finish courtesy of the American Rose Society.

Thank you notes were received from the Heppner Chamber of Commerce for decorating for the Town and Country dinner and from Leach Garden for a contribution.

Ten Blue Spruce trees will be purchased in honor of Arbor Day. Hostesses for the evening were Beulah Ogletree and Verna Brinda.

The next meeting will be held on March 1. A potluck will begin at 6:30 p.m. with the meeting to follow.

Meeting topic will be xeriscaping, which is landscaping with drought resistant plants.

Library to present Yeats program

Keith Scales

"Daybreak and a Candle End" is the title of a talk to be presented by Portland actor and director Keith Scales on Monday, March 8 at 7 p.m. at the Morrow County Museum. Scales will discuss the life and works of the early twentieth century Irish poet and playwright William Butler Yeats and their relationship to Irish history. Yeats was a leader in the Irish Literary Revival, a movement which stimulated a new appreciation of traditional Irish literature and encouraged new works written in the spirit of a distinctly Irish culture.

Scales' talk will include dramatic readings from Yeats' poetry and plays as well as information about the author's life and politics and the contemporary events that shaped them. One of the main themes will be how, in the face of political turmoil, personal disappointment and a belief that the world was about to erupt into a huge cataclysm, Yeats developed an inner calm that allowed him to grow ever more creative and sure of his art.

Keith Scales is very qualified to interpret Yeats. In his 20 years in the theater he has performed in or directed productions of Yeats' "Cuchulain Cycle," "At the Hawk's Well" and "The Only Jealousy of Emer". He has presented numerous lectures and symposia on Yeats and has published an article on the theater of W.B. Yeats. In 1990 he organized a nine hour reading by 10 actors of Yeats' collected poetry for a Portland radio station.

Scales' other acting credits include major roles in the plays of Harold Pinter, Noel Coward, Samuel Beckett and James Joyce. For two years he has played Scrooge in Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol."

"I am delighted that the library is able to present Mr. Scales' talk as part of our contribution to Heppner's St. Patrick's celebration," says Wendell Buck, the new director of the Oregon Trail Library District. "I hope that this will be the beginning of a series of programs that will enrich Morrow County's cultural life."

The program is sponsored by the Oregon Council for the Humanities, an affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities. The public is invited to attend and there is no admission charge.
