Still time to enter St. Pat's parade

There's still time to get entered in the big St. Patrick's Day parade. This year's parade includes a new category for bicyclists with a junior division for kids 12 and under and a senior division for kids 13 and older.

Also for kids 12 and under the Kids and Pets division will again award prizes to the best (Irish) dressed kid and pet, the best behaved pet, the most talented pet or the best looking pet. The committee is anticipating antique autos, floats, musical groups, Irish characters and "all the other wonderful participants who make this such a fun part of the St. Patrick's Day weekend," said parade chairman Bob Kahl.

The St. Patrick's Day Parade will begin right after the bed race at 1 p.m. on Saturday March 13. Check in time is 12 noon at Green Feed and Seed store in Heppner. Entry forms should be returned to Box 755, Heppner, as soon as possible.

For entry forms or more information contact Bob Kahl at 676-9113 days or 676-5422 evenings or stop in at Van Marter & Kahl Insurance.

Senior Dress-Up Day
Thursday was a memorable day for the senior class when its members appeared at school in a variety of costumes representing other people. The class was introduced to the assembly as the following: Ervin Perlberg, the Devil who had nothing to say concerning himself; Donald Drake, "Marrying Sam," and Bill Schwarz and the Ilene Kenney as Sacajawea; Barnacle Bill (Andy Van Schoiack) and his girlfriend (Matt Kenny); Ed Dick, a crooked lawyer who is so crooked he couldn't even get through the revolving door and is going to get Howard Bryant a divorce; Little Abner going to his wedding (Louis Gilliam); Jesse French, a miss "Born 30 Years Too Soon"; Lorena Wilson, a near sighted cowgirl and Juanita Morgan a shepherdess; Paul Phelan, as "Maggie-so what?"; Jennie Swendig as a Belle of the '90's; "Why don't you come up and see me sometime"; Tom Jones (Bill Cochell) and his son come to the Fair (Floyd Jones); Arleta Ashbaugh and Frances Rugg as mother and daughter; Chet Christenson, a young miss wearing the latest spring styles; and Mrs. Brownson, who wore the very latest in hair dress, costume and shoes.

Area scholarship trust organized

The newly organized chapter of "Dollars for Scholars" program, South Morrow County Scholarship Trust, announces that it is now a tax deductible, non-profit organization, complete with by-laws and an active board of directors.

South Morrow County Scholarship Trust is an organization designed to help graduates of Ione and Heppner High Schools with aid for post-secondary education. One of its chief short term goals is to raise $2,000 by June 1 to qualify for matching funds from the state scholarship fund. If the goal is reached in time, it plans to award two scholarships, one each to Ione and Heppner, this spring. Its chief long-term goal is to develop a large trust fund so that when the Carl W. Troedson Educational Fund ceases to exist in the year 2023 there will be adequate funds available to provide students with scholarship aid or grants.

The organization also seeks to be a resource for existing scholarship committees, to work towards a common application format and to assist any group in making known the availability of funding for further study, said a trust news release. It is not the purpose of the organization to replace other scholarship committees or groups, they said.

Members of the board of directors are president Rev. Stan Hoobing; vice president Bill Rietmann, secretary Roger Helmer, treasurer Bob Kahl, Dana Reid, George Koffler and Jim Swanson.

Anyone who would like to have more information about South Morrow County Scholarship Trust may contact a board member or call 989-8202 or write to South Morrow County Scholarship Trust, Box 368, Lexington, OR 97839.

Monies received by the organization are being invested in the Bank of Eastern Oregon, Heppner branch. All monetary donations are tax deductible.

Emergency Center remodeling delayed

While the destruction of nerve gas at the Umatilla Army Depot is on hold until the means to destroy the gas has been decided, the Morrow County Emergency Management Center project will proceed, according to Casey Beard, Emergency Management director.

Construction on the center has been delayed, however, because of a dispute between Morrow County and the federal government on funding for remodeling not originally planned for. The government is asking the county to pay for the changes.

Beard says, however, that other projects have received more monies than granted for Morrow County's emergency management project, and is asking the government to cover the additional remodeling costs.

The Emergency Management Center and the Morrow County Sheriff's office will be housed at the former U.S. Forest Service building on Sage Hill Drive in Heppner. The Sheriff's office is now located in the courthouse basement.

School board hears growth recommendations

The Morrow County School Board heard recommendations from the district growth committee at the board meeting held Wednesday, Feb. 17.

The report recommended that 34 classrooms be built in schools in Boardman and Irrigon to cope with the student growth in that area.

It was proposed in order of priority, that 12 classrooms be added at Riverside High School in Boardman, eight at A.C. Houghton Elementary School, Irrigon, 10 at Columbia Junior High School, Irrigon and four at Sam Boardman Elementary School. Cost for the classrooms is estimated to be around $3 million.

Other recommendations at Riverside include: adding a gymnasium with a wrestling balcony area and locker rooms (a gymnasium alone is estimated to be around $1 million); replacing the present auditorium with a facility that can seat the whole student body; adding additional storage space; remodeling the art room, career education room, library, auditorium and classrooms for "efficiency and usefulness"; and providing for disabled access between the main floor and the gym level.

The proposal to add eight classrooms at A.C. Houghton would call for sixth grade students to be schooled at Columbia Junior High School. Boardman and Irrigon seventh and eighth graders attend school at CJH; Boardman and Irrigon students in grades nine to 12 attend RHS. It also recommends that a library be added and the present library be remodeled for staff and conference rooms and additional storage space be built.

The 10 new classrooms at Columbia Junior High School would include six classrooms for new sixth grade students who are currently at A.C. Houghton and Sam Boardman, and two new classrooms to accommodate for the growth of seventh and eighth grade classrooms.

The CJH plan also calls for the provision of disabled access between the upper classrooms and the lower level, which houses the cafeteria, music room and gymnasium.

The Sam Boardman plan of the addition of four classrooms also anticipates that sixth grade students will be schooled at CJH. Two conference rooms and one staff room would also be added. There is no staff room at present.

The growth committee also recommended the resolution of safety issues at Heppner High School-provision for disabled access between the lower level and upper level of the building; Heppner Middle School-provision for disabled access to the top floor; and Ione Elementary School-provision of disabled access to all levels.

According to the district superintendent Ralph Reed, an elevator at Ione Elementary School must be installed to provide disabled access or the school will not be allowed to remain open. Cost is estimated around $250 thousand.

The final recommendation and receiving the last priority of the committee was to build or remodel the gymnasium at Heppner Elementary School.

In other business the board:

-accepted the resignation of board chairman Alan Holmes. No reason was given for his resignation;

-elected Scott Bauska, Boardman, board vice-chairman;

-accepted resignations from Justice Skaggs, HES assistant custodian and Nancy Leroux, RHS math teacher;

-approved employment of Benn Houk, CJH head track coach; Vickie Broden, HJH assistant track coach; and Thad Killingbeck, CJH transfer from assistant to head baseball coach;

-approved employment of Dr. Don Holes as tenure principal at CJH for 1993-94 and Bryan Traylor as third year probationary principal at HES/HJH for 1993-94;

-selected a screening committee to screen applications for the superintendent's position;

-approved raising adult lunch prices at the schools to $2 beginning March 1;

-appointed LuAnn Noack to the Boardman-Irrigon Advisory Committee;

-heard the first readings of school bus policies, payments in lieu of transportation and sexual harassment policies.

The next meeting will be held March 15 at Ione High School.
