Grain warehouse approval suspended

The Morrow County Grain Growers, Pendleton Grain Growers and the Brogoitti Elevator Co., Inc., have all been removed from the list of USGA approved warehouses, according to R.H. 'Skip' Matthews of the Commodity Credit Corporation, Morrow County ASCS office.

Morrow County Grain Growers, Lexington and Pendleton Grain Growers, were removed from the list because of "conditions noted during examinations which adversely affect the interest of the Commodity Credit Corporation," said Matthews. The Brogoitti Elevator Co., Inc., Helix, was removed because the warehouse "failed to meet the net worth minimum required under the standards for approval of warehouses," he said.

According to Matthews, the removal means that producers who store grain at any of the companies can not get an ASCS loan. However, grain may still be stored there and the grain companies can still buy and sell grain.

Larry Mills, manager of Morrow County Grain Growers, said that the problem is "just a matter of record keeping" and anticipates that the suspension will be only for a short time.

Lowell Turner receives special flight training award

Lowell and Mary Turner

Lowell Turner, formerly of Heppner is starting his 28th year as a pilot for American Airlines. With some 27 years seniority he was one of the more junior pilots to be awarded MD-11 captain training.

After three weeks of ground school in Texas, and because of a shortage of flight simulator time, American sent him and his wife, Mary to Gatwick, England. He had about 10 days training at the British Caledonian simulator, earning a captain's rating on the MD-11. The Turners also had time to spend a couple of enjoyable days touring London.

The MD-11 is a two-pilot, three-engine jumbo jet manufactured by McDonnell Douglas in Long Beach, California. "The MD-11 is the largest, longest range, newest, most automated high tech class cockpit aircraft that American flies," said Turner. At maximum gross weight, it tops the scales at 621,000 pounds. It takes 268,000 pounds of fuel to 'fill'er-up', approximately 41,230 gallons. Each of its General Electric CF6-80 turbo-fan engines will produce 61,500 pounds of thrust at maximum power. The MD-11 can carry 245 passengers, a crew of 14 flight attendants and the pilots. An extra co-pilot is required on the long international flights.

Turner, a Heppner High School graduate of the class of 1956 is now based in Chicago and will be flying to Heathrow, England and/or Frankfurt, Germany.

Happy 20th
