Ione fire protection rating improved

The city of Ione and the Ione Rural Fire Protection District will have an improved fire protection rating as of August 1, Ione Fire Department Chief Jim Boor and the board of directors announced.

The Ione Fire Department Board of Directors received notification from the Insurance Service Offices commercial risk services that the classification will be changed from a class 7 to a protection class 5/9. A class 8 will apply to dwelling properties located within five road miles of the fire station and over 1000 feet from a fire hydrant.

The evaluation was completed by an inspector last November. Dramatic improvement in fire response capabilities contributed to the new ratings.

Boor lists several reasons for the superior rating. "It has been the culmination of outstanding support by the people of Ione and the rural patrons," Boor said. "The total support for purchasing apparatus, equipment and fire station, along with the dedication of those people who volunteer their time to train and respond has made this happen," he said.

"These individuals work hard in becoming a team. They train hard to become better and most importantly, they put their lives on the line voluntarily to help protect their friends, neighbors, and a lot of times, relatives' property as well as their lives," Boor added. "They don't respond to a fire for the money."

The Insurance Services Office says that the new classification may have a favorable effect on property insurance premiums for many insured within the district. The change in premium depends on the type of building construction occupancy and other property insurance premium calculations. The change may also reduce property insurance premium calculations for sprinklered properties.

The change applies only for insurance companies using the Insurance Service Offices property insurance premium calculations. However, numerous insurance companies use other than ISO property insurance so that the effect of the change in class may be different for their policy holders.

The city classification applies to properties with a needed fire flow of 3500 gallons per minute or less. The private public protection at properties with larger flows is individually evaluated and may vary from the city classification.

"To know for sure whether this improved rating will reduce your rates a person should contact his or her insurance agent," advises Nancy Brownfield, an insurance agent for Wheatland Insurance in Ione. Some companies take special consideration for those outside the city limits upon adequate response time and water availability," Brownfield noted. "The main thing is we have improved, our fire response is better and that means a better chance to save property as well as lives. I believe the board and the fire department are to be commended for their hard work and dedication for making our community better and safer," she concluded.

Heppner TV holds annual meeting

The annual meeting of Heppner TV, Inc. was held June 15 at St. Patrick's Senior Center. The purpose of the meeting was to review the activities and financial status of the corporation for the past year and elect a member of the board of directors.

Casey Beard, coordinator of the Emergency Management System, and Andy Lennox, also involved in emergency services for Morrow and Umatilla Counties, explained the Emergency Broadcast Network and requested that the board consider allowing the Network to tie into Heppner TV for communication with residents during national, state, or local emergencies. "The board readily supported this request, with the understanding that all equipment would be funded by the Emergency Management System and that it would be compatible with Heppner TV's equipment," said a Heppner TV news release.

The board explained how the Cable Act and FCC rules interpreting the Act, may affect Heppner TV. Because all of Morrow County has been placed in the Yakima/Tri-Cities "area of dominant influence", there is strong indication that Heppner TV will again have to carry the network channels from the Tri-Cities. "The Cable Act is a complicated new law that may prove to be both inconvenient and expensive for small cable companies to implement," the release said. As soon as the "mustcarry" issues are resolved, local subscribers will be notified concerning changes in the position of channels on the cable.

The auditor indicated that the financial status of Heppner TV improved over the past year. The board approved purchase of the Sears building to provide for space for all aspects of current operations and future technical moves. The company had rented two locations for office and equipment storage since its inception. The board also is committed to providing a contingency fund for replacing the current cable when it begins to break down. It is currently beyond the originally projected years of service.

Linda Shaw was elected president of the board of directors for the coming year and Dan Oglesbee will serve as vice president. Dean Gilman was re-elected to a new five-year term. Other board members are Riley Munkers and Greg Sweek.

At an earlier meeting the board changed the regular meeting date. The board will meet on the third Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the Heppner TV office. The next regular meeting will be July 20.
