Lexington Baptist to become 'Zoo Zone' for Bible School

Lexington Baptist Church is declaring the church building a "Zoo Zone" during the week of July 26 and 30. Everyone is invited to gather up their adventures and prepare for an incredible experience from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The Vacation Bible School program will feature animals this summer. "Like Noah, adventurers will be surrounded by God's wonderful creatures and every one of them has a story to tell about their Creator," said a church spokesperson.

This free daily program for students ages three through sixth grade includes games, crafts, songs, snacks and lots of the life-changing Bible interaction. "You won't want to miss a minute of the SON-filled adventure," said the spokesperson. "It's better than terrific...it's Zoo-rrific."

Day - Ford

The towering pine trees and blooming wild flowers at Anson Wright Park were the setting for the western theme wedding of Curtis Day and Sandi Ford on July 4, 1993.

The freshly mowed lawn supplied the floor for the chapel at the end of the park where the Rev. Stan Hoobing performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Bob Green, wore a white skirt and blouse decorated in western style with jade beads and lavender suede, all hand made by Molly Day, mother of the groom.

The flower girls Kayla Angell, was accompanied by the ringbearers, Cody and Zane Ford, the two oldest sons of the bride. The youngest son, Chance Ford-Day, stood with the bride's grandparents.

The bride's attendants, Jodee Ashbeck and Kim Angell wore colorful jade and lavender western blouses and black shirts.

The groom, the best man Tim Hedman and groomsman Dale Holland all wore jade western shirts and black jeans.

The bride was raised by her grandparents, Bob and Betty Green of Spray.

The bridegroom is the son of Troy and Molly Day, Heppner.

Lorri Branstetter, sister of the groom, was in charge of the vocal presentation, and Doris Bailey, aunt of the groom, assisted Molly Day with the floral arrangements. Bryan Branstetter, brother-in-law of the groom was the photographer.

Special guests were the bride's 92 year-old great grandmother of Spray and the bridegroom's grandmother Marbel Blann, from Mitchell.

A reception was held at the couple's home in Heppner following the ceremony.

The groom is employed by Morrow County Grain Growers of Lexington.
