Sean Warren featured in WOSC newspaper

Sean Warren, 1992-93 Editor of The Western Star

Ione High School 1989 graduate Sean Warren was featured on the Western Oregon State College alumni spring newspaper.

Following is the feature article on the 1993 WOSC graduate. By LuJean Smith

When Sean Warren graduated from high school in 1989 and prepared to go to college, he was one of the few 18 year-olds on the planet who took his parents' advice. Their words of wisdom? "they said Western was a great school," confesses Sean. "I never applied anywhere else."

Gary ('71) and Susan ('72) Warren passed memories of their alma mater to Sean, their oldest of three children. Now Sean has four years' worth of memories of his own to share-including the apprehension of his first few weeks on campus.

"It seemed huge," said Sean, comparing the virtual metropolis of Monmouth/Independence to his hometown of Ione, Ore., population 275. "I didn't know if I'd be able to adapt with so many people here."

But Sean overcame his fears with amazing ease, and now, four years later, has become one of the college's most influential student leaders. Co-recipient of the 1993 WOSC Student Leadership award and the Delmer Dewey Award (presented to the most outstanding male students of the year), he also served as the 1992-93 editor of The Western Star, (formerly The Lamron). He wrote a regular opinion column and news and feature articles for the student paper-garnering him two 1993 Oregon Newspaper Publishers Association awards: second place for best news story and honorable mention for best feature story.

Sean is quick to point out that the quality of the paper and its staff is a direct reflection of the quality of education a student receives at Western. "Students have access to a wide range of programs at Western because of its small size," he said.

As one of the students who has taken advantage of these programs, Sean's resume includes not only his experience with the student newspaper, but his time as a campus bard and debater.

He penned a play "on a whim". The play, A Momentary Lapse of Discretion, was staged in 1991-with his help as assistant director-by the WOSC theatre department.

He also was an outstanding member of the WOSC chapter of Model United Nations (MUN), becoming one of six students selected to compete in the MUN national convention at Harvard University in 1991 and 1992.

As he looks back at his accomplishments, Sean sees a challenge. "The school has placed trust in me," he said. "If I don't succeed, I'll feel like I've let Western down."

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Hughes, Chamber Manager

"Wagons Ho" to Morrow County is our Morrow County Fair theme this year. Summer seems to be arriving as slow as the wagon trains and before we know it our fair will be here. While it is unfortunate that the visit of the Sesquicentennial Wagon Train in Morrow County is the same week as our fair, maybe we can take that opportunity to offer transportation to some of the participants during "slack time at Cecil" and bring them to Heppner. It promises to be an exciting and busy week for one and all. Those of us who attended the "Voices From The Trail" performance in Pendleton this past Saturday took a step back in time and felt very fortunate to experience the event. It certainly helped to "catch the pioneer spirit" which we encourage everyone to do as they plan booths and parade entries.

Next week chamber members are "brownbagging" lunch and will be meeting at the Kinzua Office where they will be given a tour of the facility. Those participating should be there by noon. The tour will last approximately one hour.

Chamber welcomes Peterson's Jewelers as a member. We're proud to say that they have been in business over 60 years in Heppner and exemplify customer satisfaction and service.

The Cycle Oregon committee is looking for eager volunteers who would be willing to serve brown bag lunches, check bicycles, bus drinks and offer on-the-spot hospitality during their lunch stop in Heppner. If an organization or individual would like to do this September 14 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. please stop by the Chamber office to sign up or give me a call.

Thought for the week: "One of the most common disrupters of marital bliss is the choice of where to spend a vacation. What this country needs is an ocean in the mountains."...Paul Sweeney.
