

4-H volunteers make the difference

4-H volunteer Mille Baker (l) helps Brandi Purcell, Lynsi Garcia and Jesse Bray get ready for presentations

The 4-H program depends on volunteers to deliver the program. Morrow County youth are extremely fortunate to have the quality leaders who do such a great job. There are leaders with over 30 members and some with fewer members who do a fantastic job. "The commitment from the leaders to provide a safe learning experience for the youth in their community is superb," said an Extension spokesperson. Many people who put in numerous hours that are not leaders, but volunteer on a short term basis for a specific project or program. Many of these are parents who also help leaders provide a good learning experience for club members.

There are also a large number of people who donate money and materials to the program. Their donations enable the program to provide a recognition program for the youth. To all the volunteers, helpers, donors, everyone who has helped to make the 4-H program so positive for all youth, the Morrow County Extension office really appreciates you.

Art Dept. improves over the years

The art department has strived over the years to show each exhibitor's artwork to the public as best as it can.

When the Morrow County Creative Arts and Crafts started working in this department the Art Department was put in various locations, one of which was among the flowers.

A group of the members in the late 1970's under president Sue Duncan, decided the Art Dept. needed a better display area and the use of old boards was decided upon. With this uniform background everyone's art was judged on like background. This way no one's art had an advantage over another. So the group, along with Mary Kilkenny and truck, went to gathering old barn boards. Most of those involved still talk of the dirt and work involved in the project. The Fair Board gave a place to put them up which could be used every year and has been a real asset for the Art Dept. Signs listing the various categories have been added, making it easier to understand the judging classes for the viewer.

The Art Dept. hopes to see lots of entries this year at the fair. "If you do any kind of art please bring it in and show it to the rest of us viewers," said an Art Dept. spokesperson.

Crafts to feature "Christmas"

Old and new in collectors corner

Two special display areas will be in the craft exhibit this year. Fairgoers will see a "Christmas in August" and "doll house" section.

Ornaments will be displayed on a tree for better viewing. There will also be room under the tree for skirts and handmade toys, etc. The "doll house" will be a home-like display setting for hand made dolls, doll clothes, doll furniture, or miniature home interior pieces hand crafted. "Remember while some of the manikin dolls (for modeling purposes) may be purchased, the wearing apparel they model is to be handmade," said superintendent Rosalie Scharen.

Collectors for the 1993 Fair will notice old and new listings for this year's fair.

The Collector's Dept. hopes these new listings will encourage more people to enter in the Collector's Corner on Monday, Aug. 16 from 1-8 p.m.
