

Weddings

Mathieu — Peterson

Lea Mathieu and Joel R. Peterson were married on October 10, 1993, at the Ione United Church of Christ, where Lea is the minister. Pastor Stanley Hoobing of Hope-Valby Lutheran churches officiated, assisted by Father Gerald Condon of St. Patrick and St. William churches.

Attending the couple were Harriet Langsford of Seattle, WA, a long-time friend of the bride's and Kerry Peterson of Beaverton, the groom's brother.

The music for the service was provided by organist Rikka Tews of Ione, and by the South Morrow Community Choir under the direction of Deborah Wryn.

Reading at the service were Andrea Naftali of Dallas, Texas and Marvin Padberg, Ione. Flowers were by Janet Allen, Ione.

A reception was held at the Ione UCC parsonage, with the help of Tami Rietmann of Heppner and a host of friends. The groom's parents, Don and Martha Peterson, gave a pre-wedding dinner at their ranch near Valby on Saturday evening.

Out-of-state guests included the bride's parents, Myrtle and Joe Mathieu of Belton, Texas, and friends from New York, Texas, Colorado, Alaska, Washington and Idaho.

The bride graduated from La Joya High School, Texas, from the University of Texas at Austin and from Union Theological Seminary in New York City.

The groom is a graduate of Ione High School and Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma, WA. He farms south of Ione, where the couple now reside.

St. Patrick's Senior Center Bulletin Board

Twenty-seven seniors had their blood pressure taken before the dinner Wednesday, Nov. 3.

There were 107 people present for dinner including five out-of-town guests. One meal was taken out. Callie Huddleston won the meal ticket, Delta Jones, the door prize and Opal Cook the guest prize. Members of the Christian Life Center served.

The meal site committee met in the office following the meal. Julia Fowler and Eva Abbot of Pendleton were present for the meeting. Julia also showed a video on care and serving of food. The transportation board met in the dining room regarding the bus barn.

The menu for the Thanksgiving dinner Nov. 17 will be turkey and dressing, mashed potatoes with gravy, green beans, cranberry salad, rolls and pumpkin dessert. Members of the Seventh Day Adventist and Nazarene churches will serve.

Eleven volunteers folded bulletins for the Extension Service Thursday Nov. 4. Thursday evening two bus loads of seniors from Heppner, Lexington and Ione went to Fossil for the Columbia Basin Electric Co-op annual meeting.

There was one table of cards Friday afternoon. Ten people attended the Sunday movie "The Gods Must Be Crazy #2". The time of the movie has been changed to 6 p.m. for the winter months.

The bus will go to Boardman Wed., Nov. 10 for anyone interested in attending the health meeting. There is also a trip planned to go to Goldendale, WA for lunch at the senior center and a mini-tour of the town given by Merri Reamer who now works there in senior services. The tentative date is Nov. 18. Check at the Heppner Senior Center for time and signups. 676-9030.

Other dates to remember are: Monday, Bible study, 10:30 a.m., quilting 1-4 p.m.; Tues. and Thurs. exercise 10 a.m.; Friday cards 2:30 p.m. Sunday movie 6 p.m.

Tickets for the Christmas tree skirt are being sold in the Senior Center office.

Rachel Harnett is now back home in her apartment.

Card party to benefit swimming pool

Off the Wall

By Meryn Robinson

As the colorful leaves tumble down and the brilliant flowers fade, it's time to boogie right past Veteran's Day and start concentrating on the upcoming holidays—even if you haven't put away the garden seed or hung up the shovel.

While baking and entertaining are important facets of this holiday season many of us spend a great deal of time and money on gift buying for our materialistic society. I've been thinking about giving family members a battery charger so that after the holiday frenzy, batteries can be recharged—but I don't know if that device will work on people. I do know from experience that one can get a charge if you incorrectly hook up jumper cables.

On a recent Oprah television show the spending habits of people were discussed. Some parents believe that their children should have everything on a lengthy want list. This contributes to a society that wants it all and expects it immediately.

A better way might be 'people-powered' gifts such as tasks that don't require a lot of cold cash. There's always an opportunity to provide services for others which do not come in a fancy wrapped package. A lot of praise goes to those who find time and energy to make hand-crafted gifts. How about an I.O.U. for a camping trip or a visit to a zoo enclosed in a book? Then there are leaves to rake, household cleaning chores or taking someone to a concert. Please note, I seldom do windows, especially my own.

Now this has nothing to do with the National Geography Week starting November 15—or does it? Most adults need a new history book for Christmas as countries change boundaries and names. It seems to take a civil war to refresh our long forgotten history lessons about little-known small countries.

It's also alarming that our own state is changing. This past year the state's population grew by 59,000 people with the population now at over three million. Analysts estimate that 42,000 new Oregonians are immigrants from other states rather than new births. About 60 percent of these people came from California and the largest number of these people are between 25 and 34 years of age.

That should mean more consumers who will also be doing some holiday shopping. But according to the Portland State Population Research and Census Center, many of these newcomers have incomes below the poverty level. While the increased numbers are largely impacting western Oregon counties, it raises a concern that the state's faltering economy can't absorb that many new citizens fast enough. It's obvious that it will take more tax dollars from everyone to provide schooling, child and health services as well as other amenities.

But just as questionable as the determination of poverty levels or minimum wages is the method by which we help others to become self sufficient. Unnecessary welfare payments or food stamps create lazy people who become dependant on the system. It's better to teach people how to preserve food from backyard gardens or surplus foods that can be gleaned. And there's money to be earned from chores, even in a town, for that youngster who must have those $100 plus shoes. Finding someone to do handyman chores or to do some plumbing is sadly lacking even in this area.

Our part of the world remains a place where people know their neighbors and take time to care. Churches, organizations and individuals help provide holiday baskets filled with goodies and toys for struggling families. Heating assistance or a warm coat are often available through the Neighborhood Center.

However this thought-provoking exercise hasn't helped me one whit with a blank page in my Christmas, 1993 gift giving guide. Perhaps I should take my own advice and dust off the sewing machine or clean the oven, it seems to take a lot longer these days to make something that is presentable. Or I could give back as miniature Christmas trees, some of these freebie pine tree seedlings that were brought home for me to nurture.

Arts club plans 'paint-in'

The Morrow County Creative Arts club will meet Sunday, Nov. 14 for a "paint-in" beginning at 10:30 a.m. at the fairgrounds.

Those interested should bring an arts or craft project to work on. Members and visitors are inited to bring a sack lunch and their project and spend the day or come and stay as long as they can.

The business meeting will be held at 1 p.m. Those who are unable to come to paint are invited to attend the meeting.

The League of Oregon Cities (LOC), an organization representing Oregon's 240 cities, has asked Heppner city manager Gary Marks to speak at their upcoming annual convention to be held in Eugene. This is the second speaking invitation issued by LOC to Marks in as many years.

Marks will speak on Sunday, Nov. 7 at a seminar on the subject of building cooperative networks with community groups to accomplish community goals. "The past three years have seen several accomplishments in Heppner in the areas of library district formation, the Vision 2000 strategic plan, the fire hall and fire truck projects, downtown improvements and the county's tippage fee grant program," said Marks.

"All of these projects were made possible through the cooperative efforts of community groups, individuals, businesses, and the county working together with the city," Marks said. "At a time when other communities are having difficulties undertaking such projects, the League wants to know why Heppner has been successful."
