is to encourage students to read more," said Harry de Boer, president, AVIA Group International. "Classrooms came up with some very creative ideas for logging hours. Everything from sleep-overs to reading parties. It just goes to prove that not only is reading a necessity in life, it's fun too."

Participating schools were divided into 36 regional groups. Top regional classrooms were selected at each grade level based on the average number of hours each student spent leisure reading. Students could earn bonus hours by visiting their community library. Regional winners were then matched against one another to determine the "overall" grand prize winners at each grade level. The top "overall" grand prize winning classrooms earn a special trip to Portland to see the Blazers play the Charlotte Hornets on Sunday, Jan. 16, 1994. Regional winners receive a classroom plaque and a mini poster of Clyde Drexler for each student. All participants receive a special certificate of recognition.

County seeks members for newly formed children's commission

The Morrow County Court is seeking applications for the newly formed Morrow County Commission on Children and Families.

The last session of the legislature passed HB 2004 which requires counties and regions to disband the more traditional children and youth service commission and form the commission on children and families.

Under the new commission, greater emphasis will be placed on programs directed at stable family relationships and children wellness programs.

The Morrow County Court is soliciting nominations for the commission. At least eight members shall serve on the commission and a goal of 15 members has been set to fill the commission. Any citizen who resides in Morrow County and is interested in the welfare of strong families and children programs is invited to send in written applications to the Morrow County Court for consideration.

The local commission will be funded by the state commission on children and families. Plans for programs and the delivery of the programs will be the responsibility of the Morrow County Commission. New programs of service will be considered as well as a continuation of existing programs that are appropriate.

A majority of the membership of the local commission must be lay people as opposed to professional workers whose main source of income is in the direct
