Off the Wall

By Meryn Robinson

There's a common theme among several letters published in last week's Gazette that were written by Jannie Allen's sixth graders. It was "the lack of something to do" and it's definitely disappointing when there is no local swimming pool.

But the tired expression of "I'm bored" is no excuse for not creating activities. Perhaps our society has become too dependent on organized activities or the television set that provides entertainment.

Children of this age can accomplish a great deal. Jobs, even for pay, are not the whole answer. However there are probably some senior citizens in this town that could use a hand with yard clean-ups or window washing. Many busy hands could make a big impact on this town's outlying areas that could use a good weed cutting party.

But ambitious youngsters can organize their own activities without needing adult supervision. Pack a lunch for some nature walks or a bicycle trip. Imagine that you're training for the olympics or just stroll and observe nature. You don't need to be awarded a T-shirt or belong to an organization to have a good time. There's also pride in accomplishment such as organizing a roadside cleanup party. And prior to St. Patrick's ducky race, a cleanup along Willow Creek through town would be great.

How about talking to parents and city fathers about filling in the existing swimming pool and providing a smooth surface for roller skating. If youngsters could prove that they would be willing to police themselves and keep the area clean, there could be another use for the facilities.

Ping pong tables inside the former bath houses could perhaps be built by shop classes. Portable music brought from home would provide an appropriate background. Perhaps there's room for a badminton court on the back side of the building. And stormy days could be highlighted by board games such as checkers or chess that can be just as entertaining as video games.

Parents already provide a great deal of time to supervise little league and other sports. How about youngsters organizing their own soccer team using the lower field near the grade school? We do have some very nice tennis courts which is more fun than playing kick the can.

Rural youngsters spend a lot of time with 4-H projects. Their urban counterparts can also benefit from these programs. There are home economics, art, craft or small animal projects to enjoy. Perhaps one could convince someone to show you how to build something like a birdhouse. Whether it's designing something for your room, surprising working parents with a well-planned meal or building a soap box racer, there's pride in accomplishment. Tap into the talents of some senior citizens who may have more time to spare than do the parents.

Local youngsters are fortunate to be able to walk the town's streets without adult supervision. Turning youthful energy into positive activities is one way to deter any gang formations as was mentioned in one of those letters.

In a few short years, these young people may not have the privilege of living in a relatively safe environment. So they need to intersperse some lively fun activities sparked from their own imaginations with little jobs that can have an impact on the community. Searching for work could enrich savings accounts for expensive higher education costs in the near future. Volunteerism isn't solely for adults. Our high caliber of sharp, young people can make a difference in the place they call home.

Grange members organize committee

By Delpha Jones
Several grange members met at the Eldon Gibbert home for a business meeting to organize the GWA committee. The meeting began at 10 a.m. with cinnamon rolls and coffee served by Barbara Gilbert. An election of officers was held with Barbara Gilbert as chairman; Geri Martin, vice chairman and Kathy Clark, secretary.

The group planned the card party that will be held Saturday Feb. 12 at the grange hall in Lexington. The next meeting will be 10 a.m. at the grange hall Feb. 28.

Engagements

Lindsay — Pihl

Larry and Corrine Lindsay, Lexington, announce the engagement of their daughter, Theresa Maureen, to Arne Henning Pihl.

Theresa graduated from Heppner High School in 1987. She has bachelor of arts degrees in history and business administration from the University of Portland and is hoping to graduate from Washington State University this spring with a master of arts degree in history. She is currently living on the family ranch and teaching history at BMCC's West Campus in Hermiston.

Henning is the son of Arne and Agnetha Pihl of Dundee. He graduated from Dayton High School in 1981 and attended Oregon State University and BMCC. He is employed with Maley Livestock Co. near Sprague, WA.

The couple plan an April 30 wedding in Heppner.

St. Patrick's Senior Center Bulletin Board

There were 85 people present for the senior dinner Wednesday, Feb. 9 with six meals taken out. Members of the Episcopal Church served. Carl Martin won the meal ticket, Sue Vinson the door prize and Lorie McKinney received the guest prize. The senior board meeting was postponed to Feb. 16, as some members went to Weston for the AAA advisory meeting. The nursing home patients did not attend the dinner because many of the patients were ill and the bus was not available because of the trip to Weston.

The menu for Feb. 23 is chicken nuggets, rice pilaf, carrot/raisin salad, corn, rolls, cake and ice cream. Members of the First Christian Church will serve.

Ten volunteers folded newsletters for the Extension office Friday afternoon, Feb. 11. No one played cards. Five ladies knitted Thursday evening. Nine people watched the movie Sunday evening.

Tax assistance is available for low, and medium taxpayers. Call the Neighborhood Center 676-5024 for an appointment.

Volunteers are still needed for the St. Patrick's projects at the senior center.

Mary Jean and Ernie McCabe decorated the senior center for Valentine's day. The seniors appreciated them brightening up the Center dining room for all the holidays. Cammie Williams prepares the monthly calendar and does a great job.

Dates to remember: Monday, Bible study-10:30 a.m.; quilting 1 p.m.; Tues. and Thurs., exercise-10 a.m.; Wed., senior dinner-noon; Thursday, knitting-7 p.m.; Friday cards-2:30 p.m.; Sunday movie-6 p.m.
