

Letter to the Editor

Vote yes for school levy

To the Editor:
I would encourage all citizens of Morrow County to give serious consideration to the importance of passing the Morrow County School District bond. The bond proposal was drafted to allow for construction of new classrooms to reduce the overcrowded conditions that currently exist, to make needed repairs and to improve technology education throughout the district. As you are aware, our region has shown a significant population increase in the last few years. This has caused overcrowded conditions in many of our schools. If we expect to continue to be competitive in attracting quality business and industry, our schools must meet the same expectations as other assets of our region. The employment opportunities for our students in the future will depend upon technology skills developed today. Improvement of technology education across our district is essential for our graduates to be employable. It is our responsibility to provide our students with skills and opportunities for success. Please join me in voting yes for the future of our students and communities.

Sincerely,
(s) Barbara L. Wetherell

Vote yes for school bond

To the Editor:
As a new resident of Morrow County, I was pleased to learn of the school district's plans for the future of the youth of the county. Even though both my son and daughter have entered the college ranks, their progress as well as their future was enhanced by progressive educators and the school boards that provide the platform upon which those educators perform. A most important item in the educational process, but one that many in America overlook, is the school house. They are always present in all of the towns, but most of us haven't taken the time to consider how they got there. Somebody, sometime, everywhere, made a decision to have a place to school our children. Even in the old west, as a community developed, one of the first things was a school.

Now it appears to be time for the somebodies, here, to do the right thing for the children of today and of the next century. It may cost a bit more these days, but it will be far cheaper this year than a few years from now, and all delays will mean is that a few more of our own are cheated. As a member of the Oregon State University Advocates group, who lobbies with our legislature for the future of higher education, I can state from first-hand knowledge that state government is far less interested in providing money to our local needs, and to rely upon anyone but ourselves for local things is wishing upon a star, if you get results, it is merely a coincidence. I personally encourage a yes vote for the county school bond.

Boardman chamber supports levy

To the Editor:
The North Morrow County Chamber of Commerce has unanimously supported the Morrow County School bond levy. The hard part will be each of the voters of Morrow County School District educating themselves about the urgent school needs. Hopefully, you will see fit, for the youths of our community, to vote in favor of this necessary levy. Regardless of what you decide, please vote on this vital issue.

Respectfully,
(s) Robert J. Boss, M.D.
President, Boardman-North Morrow County Chamber of Commerce
