Letter to the Editor

Take time to thank fair workers

To the Editor
The fair is over. It is time to start thinking about next year. How many people take time out to thank the Fair Board and Fair committee and superintendents for all their cooperation in making the fair a success?

They are really a great bunch of people.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Hughes, Chamber Manager

Sometimes we hear talk that volunteers seem to be disappearing, media negatives seem to bombard our thoughts daily, we wonder why we don't hear more positive stories and daily happenings create more stress. Then, our faith is renewed and we are reminded why it is so great to live in Heppner.

A phone call this morning from Delanne Ferguson asked that an announcement be made during Chamber regarding a work party at the Penland House Bed & Breakfast on Sunday, Sept. 25 beginning at 9 a.m. to finish painting the historic Victorian home. Experienced painters Dave Ferguson and Terry Lightle as well as Forest Service volunteers will be on hand. Additional bodies with brushes, paint rollers and energy are welcome. Don't let the heights scare you, the more experienced will handle that. Lunch will be provided by Central Red Apple. More and more visitors are calling the Chamber for overnight accommodations and the Penland House Bed & Breakfast is a great asset to the community. If 9 a.m. is too early stop by anytime Sunday to lend relief to the crew.

It has been brought to our attention that the DMV Field Services manager is recommending that Heppner's Dept. of Motor Vehicles Office hours be reduced from two days to one day. We would encourage everyone who will be inconvenienced by this situation to write letters to Jim Hunter, DMV Field Services Manager, 1905 Lana Ave., NE., Salem, OR 97314. For further information contact the city of Heppner or the Chamber of Commerce. Voices count.

Next week: Chamber's program will be the Morrow County Extension service.

Thought for the week: "Happiness is not a state to arrive at, but a manner of traveling".

Ask your State Police

By Norm Zeller

Recently the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife Commission enacted an emergency Steelhead Regulation on the John Day River and the Walla Walla River. There seems to be some confusion about the wording in the new regulation flyer being distributed pertaining to the John Day River which states the following:

John Day River: Tumwater Falls to Cottonwood Bridge, (RM 39.5)-bag limit-two/day, two in possession and 10/year, of which no more than two may be non-adipose clipped. Season: Oct. 1, 1994, through April 15, 1995. Mainstream and tributaries above Cottonwood Bridge-bag limit-two/day, two in possession, two/year. Season: Oct. 1, 1994 through April 15, 1995.

Walla Walla River: closed to steelhead angling Dec. 1, 1994-March 31, 1995.

Because of the wording "Season: October 1, through April 15, 1994", anglers are asking the question, can I still angle for steelhead on the John Day River prior to October 1, 1994 or do I have to wait until after Oct. 1, 1994. The answer to this question is yes, the regulations set forth in the 1994 angling synopsis are still in effect until October 1, 1994, at which time the new emergency regulations will go into effect.

In addition to the new steelhead regulations, the commission also adopted an immediate closure to sport angling for sturgeon on the Columbia River above Bonneville Dam to McNary Dam. However, hook and release will be allowed with the use of barbless hooks. Washington State also adopted this same regulation.

As a service to the citizens of this community, the Oregon State Police will occasionally submit articles of interest in the Gazette-Times. If you should have any questions or topics of interest please submit them to the Gazette-Times or to the Oregon State Police in Heppner.
