Lone youth group helps Portland homeless

Twelve students and five adults from Lone Youth Group traveled to Portland Dec. 28 for a day and a half service trip to help the homeless.

The group arrived on Burnside St. Wednesday morning to help the crew at Blanchet House set up for lunch.

Blanchet House workers and volunteers served the first meal of beans, bread, butter and coffee on February 25, 1952. Blanchet has continued to serve two meals a day each day of the year during its 43 years of existence. The lone group helped serve a lunch of spaghetti, salad, corn, toast, coffee, lemonade, eggnog and cake to approximately 350 people. Don Liebendorfer, Blanchet House assistant director, was presented with an Lone Cardinal cap for hosting the lone group for the past three years.

Portland Rescue Mission was the next stop for the lone youth group. Portland Rescue Mission is a drug and alcohol rehabilitation facility that also serves breakfast and dinner to the poor of Burnside. The dinner patrons must attend a church service before eating. The men in the drug program memorize scripture to advance through the program. The more scripture they memorize, the more money they are given for an allowance. They can work toward a private room at the Mission. Street people are also given a bed for the night. There are 50 beds available, which are all in one large room and can be used for up to seven days in a row. The Mission requires overnighters to shower. They are issued pajamas at night, which they turn back in the next morning. Clean clothes are provided daily if they want. During the winter months the chapel is opened for overnighters where up to 150 more men can sleep. The cook at the Rescue Mission took the lone group on a tour and explained their program. Then they helped sort canned food and began the dinner preparations.

A small group broke off from the rest to help at Sisters of the Road cafe for the afternoon. The Cafe serves an average of 200 meals a day Monday through Friday to homeless men, women and children. Sisters also has a job training program and a weekly women's self-help support group. Meals are available for $1.25 in cash, a $1 food stamp or through work exchange. The lone group helped in the kitchen, bused tables and visited with Genny Nelson, executive director.

Lone Youth Group started out Thursday morning at Macdonald Center. The center commits itself to relieve human misery, to nurture affection for the poor, and to humanize downtown Portland. Assistant director Jerome Webber, spoke to the lone group about their one on one contact with the poor of Burnside. The center staff and volunteers said they never pressure an individual to change, but try to foster a feeling of being loved and wanted. They can take care of clients' immediate needs. If more help is wanted the center makes referrals to appropriate agencies.

The last stop for lone youth group was the Everett Hotel, leased by Transition Projects Inc. Transition Projects provides emergency and transitional services that work toward the resolution of homelessness. The Everett Hotel is used as a drug and alcohol rehabilitation housing center. The lone group scraped paint off the walls and doors in a hallway so they could be repainted.

Adult leaders traveling to Portland were Darcee Padberg, Cathy Halvorsen, Jannie Allen, Sue Proudfoot and Jeri McElligott. Students attending were Jessi Stefani, Jerad Ashbeck, Alison Sullivan, Melissa McElligott, Becky Wagenblast, Jeremy Ashbeck, John Doherty, Steve Allen, Jake McElligott, Marc Orem, Jenny Sullivan and Megan Proudfoot.

New Medicine for Attention Deficit and Hyperactivity

Attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) is a childhood behavior disorder that affects 1 to 4 percent of children with a higher incidence in boys. Children typically are hyperactive, impulsive, and easily distracted. In order for children to be properly diagnosed with ADHD they must have 8 or more of the symptoms of this disorder for a period of 6 months or longer. The primary treatment for ADHD is with medications. The most commonly used prescription medicine is a stimulant called methylphenidate (Ritalin®). Some children do not respond to methylphenidate. In such cases dextroamphetamine may be used with success. Both medicines may help decrease hyperactivity and other symptoms.

Recently, a new stimulant medicine containing two active ingredients was introduced for the treatment of ADHD. The new medicine is Adderall® (a combination of amphetamine and dextroamphetamine). Amphetamines have been used in this condition in the past. However, there are no studies comparing the new amphetamine combination with existing ADHD medicines. Adderall® is being promoted by the manufacturer as being less expensive and more convenient (once to twice-a-day dosing eliminates need for taking medicine at school).
